"I SHALL DIE ALONE." When the rich gold and purple of Life's sunset Lies in beauty on the silent sea; Mhen on the shore I see the white robed awgel And hear his whisper, "God has called for thee,"

By a lit with love will watch me on the seashore, Warm human hat ds will joadly press my own: But can bear them with me on my journey Gut through the dimates of the world anknown?

And this great beauty of the earth and heavens, The holy night whose glory file my soul, The softened amethyst of failing twi light. The softened amethyst of night's emblazoned scroll-

The rosy light of morning on the mountains, The tender purple of the distant sea, Thin is live now, from henceforth all forgotten, What of their beauty can 1 bear with me? *Alone, alove, "sighed gentle hearted Pascal, and yet I think that not alone when we die: Theugh all this earth is dunly fading from us, are we alone if one kind Filend is nigh !

One who hath said, "Lo, I am with you always," The way-worn hian who sai uy Galilee, Speaking good words and healing all the people, Who lived and filed for love of you and me.

Ob. not alone, for this our Friend and Brother, Though Heaven's great angels bow before Hi throne, Shall stand, with us upon the sllent seas' ore, His band shall guide us to the world unknown.
