general reader. Historical facts are blended with honorable names that will be highly esteemed by thousands.

THE ASSURANCE given that this work would be worthy of the great theme "Jesus of Nazareth," appears to be fully verified. Difficult as the work has been to give a correct portrait of Jesus, the author has succeeded in producing a history valuable and worthy to be widely circulated.

Georgia in the Senate.

The Judiciary Committee of the Senate submitted a resolution recommending that the Hon. Joshua Hill be not admitted as a Senator from Georgia.

The case of Mr. Hill depends upon three considerations: First, that the Legislature of Georgia, regularly organized in accordance with the constitution of the United States and the constitution of Georgia, duly ratify the fourteenth amendment, and comply with the various conditions imposed by the act of June 25, 1868.

Second, that the Legislature of Georgia, and people of Georgia, subsequent to such compliance, committed such acts of usurpation and pretense as to place the condition upon which it is represented in Congress.

Third, whether, in the whole case, taking the action of Georgia, both before and since the ratification, and the fourth amendment, a civil government has been established in that State which Congress ought to recognize.

These questions must be answered by the Senate. The committee then proceeded to quote the proclamation of Gen. Meade calling the Legislature together and his correspondence relative to the eligibility of certain members.

Mr. Hendricks, the Democratic member of the committee, stated that the committee had concluded to report upon the subject before the Senate, having been prevented by illness from preparing a minority report.

The chairman of the committee, Mr. Trumbull, read a minority report, which is also very voluminous. He quotes from the official proceedings in Georgia the letters of General Meade and the orders of General Sherman on the question of the eligibility of members of the Legislature, maintaining that Georgia was reconstructed according to the prescribed form.
