The Pittsburgh Gazette FINANCE AND TRADE.

OFFICE OF PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, The tendency for gold is still downward, and quotations range between 1351/2 to 135. The bull operators failed completely yesterday in the attempt to make gold scarce, and although they bid up the market to 13514, the large offerings brought down the market to 1351. So long as the shipments of cotton, oil and other produce continues, for which there is every prospect, and the opening of havigation will increase shipments of grain and flour, which is now going forward in limited quantities on account of the high rate of inland freight. Europe, with the exception of Spain which is isolated from the great powers, is looked upon as preserving peace during the coming season, and commerce there is enlivened again. All these causes will aid in the gradual depression of the gold premium, and will prevent further heavy importations. Governme bonds have advanced too % per cent., and closed day from 14 strong with in increasing demand for bonds for investment.

-The Chicago Republican, of Monday, says: Business in all departments continues to rule fluiet, and the volume of trade is light there being no improvement worthy of especial mention to no ments worth of special mental training the tice in any branch of industry. The weather has been a scarcity of buyers on the markets, hence a lack of activity, and no permanent improvement is anticipated for some little time to come. The money market remains in a compara-tively easy condition, and there are no fears of a recurrence of the stringency of the past. But this assurance fails to stimulate activity in commercial circles. Grain is accumulating at this center, and by the opening of navigation it is quite probable that we shall have in store be-tween 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 bushels.

Tuesday, February 9, 1869.

A quieter and easier feeling seemed to prevail in oil circles, to-day, and the volume of business, feir considerably below that of yesterday. This led some operators to believe that the top had been touched, and that a reaction has just fairly bet in, and to make a still stronger case, it was alleged that some, who all along have been regarded as bulls of the first water, were making strenuous efforts to sell. Then, again, there were others who could not see matters in this light. While it was conceded that there was a luil, it was denied that there was any premonition of a break, as there was nothing in the present condition of the sides, 17c; clear sides, 174c; all backed. market to justify any such predictions.

This, as near as we could gather, is about the shape in which the trade stands, and these are the views entertained by most bearing, and more properly pertain to the future course of the market.

In oil, as in everything else, men will advocate what they consider is to their own interest, and a good deal more stress is laid on this than other considerations, which have more ers' stocks.

CRUDE. The Crude market was less excited to-day, and there seemed to be less inquiry, though there is but little change in prices. Spot oil, which was held last evening a, 18% to 19c, was offered and sold at 18%c, while futures may be tormed writer and unchanged. We can sold at 18½c, while intuition termed quiet and unchanged. OFFICE OF PITTSBURGE GAZETTE, Tuesday, February 9, 1869. There are no new characteristics in the markets worthy of special notice. Generally, there is a fair demand for most of the leading articles, and a fair volume of business in the aggregate, while prices have undergone no material change. Orders appear to be coming in more freely from the country, and some houses, probably, have more than they want, especially when sixty to ninety days time is asked.
