Saturday afternoon, Johnny Simpson, a little boy about five years of age, whose parents reside at the corner of Grant and Water streets, while playing on a flat, in the Monongahela river, between Grant and Ross streets, fell into the water and would have drowned had it not been that Fred Dierst and Jimmy Hamill, who were at Hamill's headquartere, saw him fall in and ran to his assistance. The "headquarters" are situated on the bank some distance back from the river, and when they arrived at the spot where the boy fell in he had disappeared. In a moment, however, he came to the surface, and was taken out and carried to Jimmy's room, where the proper reme dies were applied to resuscitate him. He was quite insensible when taken out of the water, but was restored to conscious-
