a common expression, a little sick today, and, compared with yesterday, prices are lower. There are various causes assigned for the present reaction, the most prominent of which is the fact that according to the latest circulars from Philadelphia, there are but three vessels loading in that port, showing that demand for export is very light, and, in addition, the supply is accumulating. It is said that exporters cannot and will not pay the present prices, as 57 francs at Antwerp is equal to about 33 cts. in Philadelphia, and the demand for speculators scems to have subsided for the present—it is a rare thing to see speculators buy on a declining market. There are those, however, who contend that this whole thing is the result of a strong and vigerous bear movement—brought about by parties who are largely short, and whose interest, of course, is to break the market as badly as possible.

CRUDE—As already, intimated, the market was decidedly weak, and panicky to-day, with a stronger pressure to steady at previous prices. Nothing do. most prominent of which is the fact that

May et al. owners of the steamboat Mercury, came up on Tuesday. The plaintiff in this case sues to recover the value 307 mules and 3 horses, which he alleges he shipped from White river to Memphis; that when the boat had reached Arkansas cut-off, she, by mistake of her pilot, went into the cut-off, and that while in thecut-off and out of her route of voyage, the boat sunk upon a snag and the horses and mules were lost. The defendant's first answer claimed that the whole ccuntry was so overflown that it was impossible for the pilot to tell which was the true channel of White river, and that, therefore, the going into the cut-off was unavoidable. In their second answer they contend that they were driven into the cut-off by wind and current. The evidence for the plaintiff was all heard, and a portion of the testimony for the defendants was heard.
