It is said that as soon as it is confirmed that the Cuban insurgents have established a Provisional Government, President Grant will recommend to Congress an immediate recognition of their independence. This will be the first step toward the annexation of Cuba to this country. It is stated to-night, on apparently re-

The recommendation for that repeal will pass the Senate without doubt, and will probably have little or no opposition in the House. It is also understood that this is satisfactory to the President, and will enable him to make appointments during the recess of Congress, thus giving him more time to decide upon the merit of the applicants, and leave him more time than he would otherwise have if compelled to make all the changes now necessary to be made during the present short session.
