Philadelphians has a velocipede club which the Bulletin says is the first organization of the kind in the Union. Convinced as we are of the usual veracity of that journal, we doubt the truth of that assertion, for Pittsburgh has at least one velocipede club which is four or five months old.

Karl Gutzkow, the German author, says he has seen nearly all the great authoresses of the present day, and they are all homely, even including Dora d'Istria, whom he calls a phenomenon, and says would be beautiful were it not for the cold and haughty expression of her eyes.

A sword fish on the coast recently ran his weapon, several feet long, through the "skull hole" at the stern of a fishing boat. One of the fishers seized the sword and getting astride of it, held it firmly. Meantime the fish, by the action of his tail used as a propeller, urged the boat forward at a good rate of speed until she reached the vessel to which she belonged, her head fortunately being in that direction when she made the attack.

In Kanton Uri, in Switzerland, editors and printers who print and publish articles offensive to the authorities receive a certain number of lashes on the bare back. In Bohemia offensive editors are punished with imprisonment and fasting, and in Mecklenburg the opposition papers are not allowed to publish leading articles, a wise provision which, if adopted here would make some editors leap for joy, and would greatly enhance the value of some papers we know of.

A most remarkable and interesting case recently occurred in Zanesville; it is one which has interested physicians there considerably. It appears that about three weeks ago a Mr. James Lindsey was at-

PHILADELPHIA.

Mr. GEORGE HALL, Jr., living near Deerfield, Michigan, recently lost several sheep which were killed and eaten, and he endeavored in vain to discover the depredator. Suspecting, however, which were in the same inclosure, he shut them up, but obtained no relief. At last he caught his five-year-old colt in the act of killing and devouring one of his sheep. He was taking large bites and licking up the blood, and the sheep was still alive. Mr. Hall succeeded, with some trouble, in driving the colt away and killing the sheep. He then went off a short distance to see what the colt would do, when the colt soon returned and commenced eating the dead animal.

A Piece of Yankee Strategy. From the Fort and Transcript. At the battle of Rappahannock Station, after the Fifth Maine had gained possession of the works in the center, and were taking a few minutes' rest, a party of men from Company G, and pressed on in quest of prisoners, suggesting some might be found in the darkness of the night. Following the line of fortifications down toward the river, he saw before him a long line of men in a tight file, determined to put on a bold face.

PHILADELPHIA.

"Where is the officer in command of these troops?" demanded the gallant Colonel. "I answered a Colonel, who was commanding a rebel brigade, 'and who are you, sir?'" "My name is Colonel Edwards, of the Fifth Maine, and I demand you to surrender your company."

PHILADELPHIA.

"I will confer with my officers first," replied the rebel officer. "You must allow me to get away in my own way," said Col. Edwards. "Don't you see my company's advancing? [pointing to a large body of men marching over the hill, but who were the rebel prisoners being marched to the rear.] Your forces on the right have all been captured, and your retreat is cut off," and as the rebel commander hesitated, he continued: "Forward Fifth Maine and Twenty-first New York."

PHILADELPHIA.

"I surrender, sir," said the rebel commander, quickly. "Will you allow me the courtesy of retaining my sword that has served me so long?" "Yes, sir," replied Col. Edwards, "but I will take the swords of those officers," pointing to the colonels by his side. "They were handed to me by their arms, and pass to the rear with this guard."

PHILADELPHIA.

They obeyed, and a whole brigade of Louisiana, and the famous Fifth and Sixth among them, permitted themselves to be disarmed, and marched to the rear as prisoners of war, by Col. Edwards and less than a dozen men of his regiment.

DISEASES resulting from the infractions of the moral law are fearfully prevalent in the city. The number of sick attending the charitable institutions is over 800,000 per annum. 8000 surgical out-patients, 8000 of these are infected with such disorders. In Guy's Hospital the enormous number of 25,000 out-patients, 10,000 of these are treated as cases of contagious disease, exclusive of the patients suffering from the average cases. In smaller hospitals from these dis- orders the applicants to be from one-fourth to one-half of the surgical out-patients.

PHILADELPHIA.

The 800,000 sick treated at the hospitals indicate those who are relieved of course, in those who are relieved in work-houses, or by the parish—a large addition.

PHILADELPHIA.

A scene occurred recently in a church at Antwerp. The beadle has the custom of preceding the principal persons in the parish in order to make way for them. A deacon, dressed in his official robes, was in the House of God, where all were equal. If those ladies wish to pass, let them be by the arm and tried to force a passage, but she raised her hand and gave him such a slap in the face as no dignitary of his kind, perhaps ever received before. He was so thunderstruck at the attack that he never thought of persisting.

PHILADELPHIA.

WE READ in the New York papers that a sad story of inhumanity and barbarous treatment is told by the passengers of an emigrant ship just arrived at that city from Liverpool. They say they were beaten and starved during the whole voyage, and that two of the crew died from excessive beating and kicking by the captain and his mates. A woman died from the effects of being kicked by the mate, and a babe died in a few hours after receiving a kick on the head from the same brute. The captain and mate have been arrested. A thorough investigation is to be had.
