SPRING FASHIORS.

The new spring styles in dress goods are very attractive, but not showy, and it is expected that a richer assortment will be brought out the first of next month. There is a slight decline in the price of most materials, with an active demand of the leading styles.

The figured silks and moires on exhi bition are rich and elegant, making brilliant evening toilets, In plain silks, for dress occasions, green and French gray are the most fashionable colors. The light changeable or chameleon silks are much in vogue at the present, and make effective dresses, the harmonious blending of shades and the wavy tints giving them a brilliant lustre.

ionable for ordinary wear; the plaids in small checks of two contrasting colors, and the stripes narrow. These can be purchased at a much lower rate than las year. Striped silks are also fashionable for evening wear, the underskirt made of wide stripes, the overskirt and bodice of narrow stripes in the same colors.

makes the demand so great that there is no decline in the price of black silk. POPLINS, ETC.

There is a fine display of poplins and other materials for spring wear. A new material called "Stella" cloth makes quite stylish dresses and do not require expensive trimming. Persian cloth is used for walking dresses, and light gray tweeds to some extent, but the latter d not make attractive suits. Alpaca will also be much used for out-door costume when an expensive suit is required; and water-proof cloth is still in demand for unpleasant weather. Gaze de chambery in robes, and that having a silvery lustre is much used for balls and evening

The trade in Alexandre's kid gloves has opened briskly. These gloves are still made with two, three, four oraix buttons, ome of them being all in one piece, others having the wrist attached by a welt of some contrasting color. Children's gloves are made up not only in kid, but very durable ones of dog skin and double-

A novelty in the decoration of gloves is the embroidery in place of the welt. This is in some contrasting color, and is in scollops and chains, and the upper par of the wrist is usually pinked. The fash-ionable colors are the Etruscan shade, cedar-berry in all its dark and delicate tints, the Tuscan straw shade, and the salmon, a deeper tint than that of last year. An entirely new shade, and one destined to become very fashionable, is putty color, and can be had in all tints from the most delicate to the darkest. The fashionable gloves, for morning wear, are the various shades of nut brown and in all the neutral tints. Canary lar, the Republican orator, thus addressed the irate Marshal: "Who are you, Don-Juan Prim, that you should declare yourself impatient to exasperation because we, on behalf of our murdered fellow citizens on behalf of our murdered fellow citizens—murdered by your soldiers—call in question the legitimacy of those acts? Know that in this assembly we are your equals—nay, we are your masters. You are in the presence of the national sovereignty. Listen, then, and bow your head." The effect this well-timed rebuke produced was weighted. produced was prodigious; the dead silence which it imposed was far more eloquent and significant than any amount of applause could have rendered it. Prim did as he was bidden.
