"A Show Case."—An item in the GA-Mr. John Megraw, of Ninth (Hand) street. It appears that Mr. Kenneweg made information charging Mr. Megraw with larceny. The prosecutor alleged that in selling out some of his tenant's propertyjunder a landlord's warrant, the officer entrusted with the sale disposed of a show case belonging to him. That was all that was in the case, and how the Alderman could have entertained a prosecution for larceny we are at a loss to discover. Associating Mr. Megraw's name with anything dishonest is simply an outrage, that gentleman standing as high for strict integrity as any business man in the city; and, while his friends could

Robbery in Hayti. Robert Grater lodged an information before Alderman Shore yesterday against Malinda Lucas, Sarah Jackson and Mary

Malinda Lucas, Sarah Jackson and Mary Ann M'Kensey, colored denizens of an establishment in "Hayti," for larceny. Grater alleged he sought lodgings in the house a few evenings since, but had not been there very long until he discovered the absence of his pocket-book, containing seventeen dollars, which he asserts was taken by the defendants. The accused ware arrested and in defeute of cused were arrested and in default of bail committed for trial. A cross suit was entered by Malinda Lucas against Grater for fornication. He was arrested and locked up for trial.

That Larceny of Hides. We stated yesterday, that John Schell a prisoner in the Allegheny lock-up, had confessed to the larceny of a number of hides from the tannery of J. C. Lappe, Seventh Ward Allegaeny. In his confession, Schell implicated a certain Michael Hasley, whom the police secured vestarday effernoon at a horizontal secured. yesterday afternoon, at a brewery in the Third Ward, where he was employed. The number of hides stolen, was fifteen, which were altogether, valued at about one hundred and thirty-five dollars. Three of these were found in a stable owned by Hasley, in the Third Ward. The others have all been traced to the different parties to whom they were sold and who stated that Hasley represented he had purchased them. The accused had a hearing last evening before Mayor Drum, and were finally committed for

In justice, we cannot close without returning our thanks to J. B. Of him and his able and gentlemanly Assistant, John G. McConnell, Esq., the Grand Jury cannot speak in too high terms of praise.

Mr. Megraw moved that the bid of Messrs, Hood and Stewart be accepted. Mr. Long opposed the building of an expensive house. He thought one could be built at a much less cost, to answer the purpose just as well. He could see no use for a third story to the building. If one company built such a house, all the companies in the city would desire, and had a right to such houses, which would entail an expense to the city quite beyond its means.

Mr. Megraw explained that the design of the building was to accommodate all of the building was to accommodate all future wants. The third story could be converted into a public hall, and would prove a source of revenue to the city. building.

Mr. Long said if these expenses continued an additional tax it would have to be levied next year, to keep up the credit of the city.
