PETROLEUM MARKET.

OFFICE OF PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, SATURDAY, March 27, 1869. GENERAL REVIEW-The market has been exceedingly rregular during the past week, almost every day having been characterized by violent and sudden fluctuations, and the volume of bus-iness in the aggregate has been comparden fluctnations, and the volume of ous-iners in the aggregate has been compar-atively large. It has been no uncommon thing to see the market rise and fall two or three times in a single day, thus keeping up a constant excitement and agitation, and at thires it was difficult for three even who are engaged actively in the busines;, to htop the run of it. To day the feeling for 1 oth Crude and Refined was decidedly weak, and com-pared with yettprday, prides decimed to be but few buyers. The fact that large arrivels of Crude are expected to be but few days, hrd a tenden-ey to depress the market and reatric operations, and as the time and attention of or vrators generally appeared to be mainly absorbed in making arrange-ments for delivories but comparatively little effort was made toward buying area by and store of a comparatively little effort was made toward buying or 100 area toward buying 1-10 premium selling in the size of news is 53% (0.54% for regular and f.eah receipts; no grade at 53% (0.54% for new; sales since change at 54% (0.
