Now the rising and setting sun bhail as e the hast and West are one, Wherever the steed of steam shall run. The Union shall be one lorever. State linked with basts with iron bands, Hear's linked with hearts, and hands with Hast to our broad free lakes and sands! —all to our ree lands! Hall to our free hands! Hall to the gold sall! Hall to the last rail!

Over prairies of gold and green.
Over rivers that roll between.
Plumed mount ins of richest sheen.
The steam horse toils harder and harder.
Now icaring the wild herds and flocks.
Now thousering over granite blocks.
Now climbing the steep shelving rocks.
Now thought the steep shelving rocks.
Hall to the plains below!
Hall to the peaks of anow!
Hall to the choose woke!
From over the wall.

From ocean to ocean the rail
Runs over the mountain and the vale,
Which echo with blows on the soil,
Now her a dry the list ring races.
Hail to the pathway of nations here!
It runs to day through a nemi phere,
The good time coming must now be near,
It shines on bur hope-lighted faces.

Hait to the age of steam!
Hail to the fron team!
Hail to our fon bars!
Hail to our fag of stars!

> THEODORE TILTON, in the last Independent, says that American reformers are not "long haired." They are for the most part a company of bald pates, as thus: "The venerable and illustrious head of Wm. Lloyd Garrison is as smooth and shining as an ostrich-egg. Horace Greely has just hair enough to skirt his basilar faculties with a fringe of Anglo-Saxon gold. Ralph Waldo Emerson keeps his hair cropped as close to the skull as a prize fighter's. Werdell Phillips has a few scattered and beautiful gray locks, which William Page is just now transferring to canvass. Henry Ward Beecher's hair is not half so long as his father's was. Charles Sumner, for whom nature is now ripening what Ten-nyson calls 'a good gray head,' has a stardy growth of hair, but keeps it under the inexorable shears—Airopos occat.
> Theodore Parker had not had hair enough to keep his head from suffering this win-ter's cold. Chief Justice Chase (who was once a Radical) has been shorn of his locks, like Sampson. General Butler is distinguished for many things, but not for hair. Indeed, so far from the common notion being true that Radicals have long hair, there is something in Radicalism that shortens hair -as if the Radicals, in taking time by the forelock, got their own forelocks taken by time."

A DISPATCH from Lima, Ohio, states that, on Saturday night, a vigilance com-mittee, composed of the "leading citizens" of that town, broke open the county jall and, took out two men, Jeremy Diddlers by profession, charged with so worming hemselves into the confidence of a Pennsylvanian, on the cars recently, that he thought his money would be safer with them than with himself, and therefore intrusted it to their keeping, never to see i again. The vigilants shaved their heads, coated them with tar and feathers, and finished with an egging. They then kicked them out of town. "Leading citizens" of this stamp ought to be leaded, though in this that institution in order to gain the credit of having save, the viceregal life.
