Troy Hill was quiet yesterday. A squad of police and the general desgreeableness of the day, were the causes.

Matters were dull at the Allegheny Mayor's office yesterday. Five mon cases only were disposed of.

There was no police business other than the disposal of common cases transacted at the Mayor's office, either Saturday or yesterday.

The Pittsburgh Conference of the M. E. Church according to statistics, just published, contains two hundred and twenty-eight ministers in active work.

It is quite probable a special meeting of the Allegheny Councils will be held sometime during this week. A great part of the business brought before them at the last regular meeting was not dispressed of.

Obnoxious.—The smell of gas at the corner of Smithfield street and Diamond alley, is decidedly unpleasant. The main pipe has probably been broken by the caving in of the excavation for the aswer, and the gas is escaping.

Caved In.—The Diamond Alley sewer is not yet completed, although the work has been pushed forward as rapidly as possible. The excavation at Smithfield street caved in slightly yesterday, which will necessarily cause a temporary delay.

Mayor's Court.—The morning Court held by Mayor Brush was an unusually thronged one. There were thirty-seven cases disposed of about twenty of which were for drunk smess. The inspirity of the victims in the fines imposed upon assault and battery. This is a case arising out of a neighbors' quarrel. The accused are charged with beating the prosecutrix over the lead with a broom-stok and dish-pan. The parties reside on Point street. Warrant issued.

Considerable excitement was created bur considerable excitement was created at the corner of North avenue and Federal streets yesterday afternoon by a street fight between a couple of young men who had somewhere obtained an overdose of puglistic whiskey. One of the combatants had his eyes draped in mourning and the other grieved over a damaged probosnis, after which their valor subsided and the crowd also. There were no arrests. were no arrests.

Felenious Assault.—Adolph Elsessor made information before Alderman Eggers on Saturday against John Stolker for felonious assault and battery man for felonious "assault" and battery. The parties reside in the Eighth ward Allegheny. The accused was charged with beating the prospection with a fre shovel and striking at himseveral times with a knife, fortunately, however, missing the mark. Stolker was arrested and after a hearing compromised the case by paying the costs.

Addison White, a soldier in the Regular Army, formerly of this city, died at Louisyille on the 3d last., in Taylor Barracks. Major Frederick writes that he was buried with the honors of war, and imparts information of advantage for the friends of the deceased, who can see the letter by calling at our office. Any of our readers knowing the relatives of Mr. White will greatly oblige them by communicating this information.

Cress Suits,-John Mekan made infor mation before Alderman Taylor, Saturday, against Stephen England for selling day, against Stephen England for selling tiquor on Sunday. In return Stephen made information before the same magtrate against John for surety of the peace. England is propriets of a hotel on Penn street, Ninth ward, and Mehan is boarder with him. They had a difficulty in regard to the boarding, which resulted in the suits. The affair was finally settled, the costs being divided between the narties.

Insufficient Evidence.-Two boys. about sixteen years of age each, were brought before Mayor Drum on Saturday, on suspicion of being implicated in the larceny of a lot of lead weight ing about one hundred and fifty pounds ing about one hundred and fifty pounds from the works of Schonomaker & Co., on Rebecca street, First ward, Alleghemy, The lead had been stolen about a week ago, but was subsequently discovered in a board pile in the vicinity. The evidence against the boys was insufficient to subsubstantiate the charge, and they were accordingly released. accordingly released.

Found Drowned.—The body of an unknown man was found floating in the Allegheny river, near the Hand street bridge, yesterday morning by two boys who were crussing the river in a skiff. They brought it to shore and notified the Coroner, who held an inquest upon it yesterday afternoon. The man was apparently about thirty-five years of age, had brown hair and lorge sandy whickers. had brown hair and long sandy whiskers, and wore a small gold ear ring in the right ear. 'The jury returned a verdict of "found drowned." Coroner Clawson has in his possession pieces of the clothing worn by deceased, and other article by which the body may be identified The remains were decently interred.

Destructive Fire-bix Tenements Destroyed.

Saturday morning, about five o'clock, fire broke out in a row of frame houses, t Wood's Run, near the Excelsior Iron Works, which resulted in their entire destruction. The houses were owned by Messrs. Graff, Sellers & Co., of the Excelsior Iron works, and were occupied by employes of the firm, who succeeded in saying a part of their effects, though con-siderably damaged. The engines from Allegheny were called out, but arrived too late to prevent the destruction of the buildings. The fire broke out in one of the middle houses, but the origin of it has not been ascertained. The coal rail-way of the Excelsior Works, and some sheds connected with the Ardesco Oi snees connected with the Ardesco Oil Refinery, at one time were on fire, but the flames were quickly extinguished without material damage. The estimated loss is $3,000, which is covered by an insurance of $5,000 in the North Am. erican of New York, and the greater part of the remainder in home companies.

Decoration of our Soldiers' Graves. We have received the following circular in reference to the decoration of Boldiers' graves, and the part to be taken by the Soldiers' Orphans': HARRISBURG. PA., May 11, 1869.

To the Principals and Managers of the Soldiers' Orphans' Schools and Homes: The ready response made last year, and the indications of a still more ready response to this year's call to decorate the graves of those who fell in the ser vice of their country, are handsome and merited tributes to the memory of those brave men, as well as evidences of the ardent patriotism that actuates a grateful people so recently rescued from the horrors of division and anarchy. It has been thus recognized as both right and proper, and as agreeable to the popular heart, to go in solemn procession to our burial grounds, and decorate with the choicest flowers of spring, the graves that hold the earthly remains of our national defenders.

And certainly it will be admitted, also as right and proper that the young of both sexes, and of all condition in life, should join in the annual ceremonies; for where more surely will they learn to love their country, to venerate the memories and emulate the examples of those who gave their lives to preserve its national existence, than at their graves. It is hoped and believed that the annual ded sensation among the ladies? This return of this National Memorial Da is the more remarkable, as we are so sober, staid and free from liability to by all our people, irrespective of party excitement as even Pittaburgh itself— or sect. But this interest, be it ever so that soberest, quietest of all piaces. Then, intense, cannot equal that of the widow or sect. But this interest, be it ever so intense, cannot equal that of the widow whose companion, and of the orphan whose father fills the grave thus decorated with flowers. To them this fitting ceremony will be regarded as a mournful duty, and its performance a melon-choly pleasure. Their flowers, culled and strewn with more willing hands, will be watered with the tears of affe tion, and accompanied with the prayers of the lonely and bereaved. Alas, that so many of these graves are on Southern battle-fields, too distant to receive even this annual remembrance at the hands of sorrowing mothers, fathers, wives or chil-

For these reasons I hereby direct the observance of this Memorial Day at all the Schools and Homes containing Soldiers' Orphans' under the care of the State, and recommend that the children par-ticipate in the ceremonies observed by the people in the vicinity of these Schools and Homes, upon such a day and in such a manner as may be agreed up-

The South Side Calamity. On Saturday morning the mangled remains of George B. Caven who died such a terrible death beneath the ruins of the | May 14, 1869; fillen bonded warehouse of Messrs. Joseph S. Finch & Co., on the Southside. were taken from the prison place in which held. The body was bruised and ornshed, and even had the unfortunate man been earlier rescued from his awful position he could hardly have survived his injuries. The deceased was placed in a handsome coffin and sent by special train to the residence of his parents at McReesport. Young Caven was an exemplary gentleman strictly sober, industrions, attentive and capable. He was a church member and lived such a life as to insure the belief that although strick-en down by death so suddenly, he was not found unprepared to meet his God. The wounded men, Messes Steele and Robinson, at last accounts were considered out of danger. Their injuries, although severe, were not necessarily fatal.

They have the best of medical attendance. In our report of the accident we erred in stating that the work of recovering the buried men was delayed. Prompt efforts were at once made to re-lieve them from their positions. Messrs. Finch and Painter, the humane proprie ters of the establishment, were on the ground a few minutes after the accidental and did all in their power toalleviate the wounded, and, at the peril of their own lives, to recover the young man who died in the ruins, and it was not till all hope was gone that they left the place. Although their pecuniary loss was great, they forgot it and would have gladly forfeited every dollar they owned in the world to have rescued the victim from the awful position in which he was held. The building although partially destroyed will be razed to the ground and a new and thoroughly substantial one will take its place. The Department at Washington has sanctioned the removal of the whiskey to other quarters until the building may be completed. Inasmuch as the structure now condemned by the Government officers, after the plans and specifications were presented them in due accordance with law, any reflection on either the proprietors, the architect or builders would be not only out of place but uncharitable. The building was not unit with the second the s building was put up in Winter, and it is thought that the frost is in a large meas ure responsible for its tumbling down. The Government officers thought it would be amply strong enough to store away twenty thousand barrels of whiskey, or four thousand tons weight. Less than one-fourth that quantity of whiskey was in the entire building when the corner gave away, and on the outside es-timate no more than ten hundred barrels were included in the part which fell from its own weight. The building was unsafe, but it deceived all as to its character. The firm will sacrifice it rather than risk any danger in the future, although threefourths stand unimpaired, and the structure is entirely new, costing a vast sum of money for its erection.

Too much credit cannot be awarded the brave men who worked so earnestly and so faithfully to extricate young Caven from the ruins. In the very jaws of death they hammered and sawed and they way not bear they have a sawed and they have not bear the dug away, not knowing at what moment the tons of debris might move and fall upon themselves. Dr. J. H. Roberts, of South Pittaburgh, and Dr. Rodgers, of the city, were also zealous in their labor.

Brodle to whom we make reference, was the first to rush into the ruins and was at the side of the buried men before the cloud of dust ensuing from the fall had rolled away. He was largely instru-mental in saving Messrs. Robinson and Steel from death, and worked incessantby in the most perilous places to resoue poor Caven. His conduct was that of a true hero and christlan and won for him the admiration, esteem and respect of all who witnessed his valorous endoavors to save the life of a suffering fellow being.

Oroner Clawson commenced an in-quest on the body of the deceased, which quest on the body of the deceased, which will be concluded on Tuesday next. The body will be laid in its final resting place at McKeesport, to morrow.

Not satisfied with her failure, she reinforced herself with a brick, which she also threw at him and which he managed to elude. The cause of her malady, from what we could gather from her conversation, appears to be jealousy, which, although unfounded, appears to have preyed upon her mind to such an extent as to almost completely destroy it.

She will probably be returned to City Farm. She appears to be devotedly attached to the child, and offers violence to no one but her husband, whom she ac-

The agents of the defendant neglected to forward the dispatches, although at the time of their being left in the office defendants agent agents. With this response in his hand, one of the plaintiffs went to the office of defendant, determined to fathom the mystery, and showing the message to defendant's agent, desired to be as-sured if his former dispatches had really gone as they had previously stated. The agent said they had, but to be sure he would go up to the operators room and see, and, as this wilness testified, the plaintiff followed him up so close that he was in the operator's room as soon as he was, and there, under thirty or forty other messages, he found his dispatches, neither of which had been forwarded as represented. It was shown on behalf of plaintiffs that the oil could have been readily sold at the price named if the two telegrams had been promptly forwarded; that at the time the third dispatch was sent, if plaintiffs had not been deceived by defendant's agent, they could then have communicated their instructions by another company in time to make the sale, but that at the time the neglect was discovered, it was too
