The Natisburgh Gazette.

[From the Atlantic Monthly for June.] * NOREMBEGA.* BY JOHN G. WHITTIER.

The winding way the serpent takes. The mystic water took.

From where to count its beaded lakes,
The forest sped its book.

A narrow space 'twixt shore and shore, . For sen or s are to fall, While evermore, bench t, before, Crosed in the forest wall. The dim wood hiding underneath Wan flowers without a name; Life tangi d with decay and deatu, League after league the same.

Unbroken over swamp and hill
The rounding shadow lay.
Eave where the river cut at will
A pathway to the day.

B-side that track of air and light, Weak as a child unwaned. At shot of day a Christian knight Upon his henchman leaned.

The embers of the sunset's fire:
Alony the clouds burne: down;
"I see," he tald. 'the domes and spires
Of Norembers town."

"Alack! the domes, O master mine, Are.Golu-n ciouds on high: You spire is but the branchiess pine That cuts the evening sky." "O husn and hark! What sounds are these But chart; and holy byn ns?"
"Thou hear is the breeze that stirs the trees
Through all their leafy limbs."

"Is it a chapel bell that fills

The air with its low tone?"

Thos hear, 's the tinkle of the rills,

The fasect's yesper drone." "The Christ be praised!—He sets for me A blessed cross in alguit!" "Now. nay. "its but you blasted tree "With two gaunt arms outrigat!

"Be it wind so sad or tree so stark, It mattereth not, my knave: Methinks to funeral hymns I hark, The cro's is for my grave!

"My life issped; I shall not see
My home-set salls again;
The sweetest eyes of Normandie
Shall watch for me in vain. "Yet onward still to ear and eye
The baffling marvel calls;
I fain would look before I die
On Morembega's walls.

'So, haply, it shall be thy part
At Obvistian feet to lay
The mystery of the desert's heart
My dead hand plucked away. "Leave me an hour of rest; go thou An 1 look from yonder heights; Perchance the valley even now Is started with ity lights."

The henchman climbed the nearest hill, He saw nor tower nor town. But, through toe drear woods, lone and still, The river rolling down. He heard the stealthy feet of things

Whose shapes he could not futter as of evil wings, The fall of a dead tree. The pines stood black against the moon, A sword of fire beyond;
As word of fire beyond;
He heard the wolf howl, and the loon
Laugh from his reedy pond.

He turned him back: "O master dear, We are but men misled: And thou nast sought a city here. To find a grave instead." 'As God shall will! what matters where

So heaven be o'er it here as there In , leasant Norman land? These woods, perchance, no secret hide Of lordy tower and hall; You river in its wanderings wide Has washed no city wall;

"Yet mirrored in the sullen stream
The hely stars are given;
Is Norembegs then a dream
Whose waking is in heaven?

No builded wonder of these lands
My westy eyes shall see;
A city never made with hands
Aloue awaiteth ms—

" Urbs Syon myslica!: I see
It mansions passing fair,
Condita cato!; let me be,
Dear Lord, a dweller there!" Above the dying exile hung The vision of the bard. As faitered on his failing tongue. The song of good Bernard.

The henchmin dug at dawn a grave Beneath the nemlock brown. And to the desert's keeping gave.
The lord of fiel and town.

Years after, when the Sieur Champlain sailed up the mystle stream. He found the Norman's nameless grave Within the himlock's shade, And, stretching wide its arms to save,

The cross-boughed tree that marked the spot And made it holy ground; He needs the earthly city not Who hata the heavenly found!

Who hath the heavenly found!

[Norembega, or Norimbegne, is the name given by early Franch "ishermen and explorers to a fabulous country to the of Cape Breton, first discovered by verrazzani in 1524. It was supposed to have a magnificent city of the same name on a great river, probably the Penobasot. The site of this barbaric city is laid down on a map published at Antwerp in 1850. In 1860 Champlain salled in search of the Northern aidorado, wenty-two leagues up the Penobasot from the fell Hante. He supposed the river to be that of Norembega, but whelv came to the concitation that those travelers who told of the great city had never seen it. He saw no evidences of anything ilke civilization, but mentions the finding of a cross, very old and mossy, in the woods.]

warmth became too pronounced, "Parson Simpson's a smart man; but, I tell ye, it's kind o' discouragin'. Why, he ye, it's kind o' discouragin'. Why, he said our state and condition by natur was just like this: We was clear down in a well fifty feet deep, and the sides all round nothin' but glare ice; but we was under immediate obligations to get out, 'cause immediate obligations to get out, 'cause because we had the good fortune to be born women. We sympathize most truly we are free, voluntary agents. But no-body ever had got out, and nobody would, unless the Lord reached down and took 'em. And whether he would or not, took 'em. And whether he would or not, nobody could tell; it was all sovereignty. He said there wasn't one in a hundred—deso ation and unhappiness; but this is all we can do. Sorosis is too young for the society of gentlemen, and must be alnot one in a thousand-not one in ten thousand—that would be saved. Lordy massy, says I to myself, of that's so they're any of'em welcome to my chance.

And so I kind o' ris up and come out.
'cause I'd got a pretty long walk home,
and I wanted to go round by South Pond and inquire about about Aunt Sally Morse's toothache."

Emigration to Atrica.

The Secretary of the American Colonization Society, writing to the Ledger in reference to the statement that the number of colored emigrants to Africa has fallen off since the war, asserts that this corespondent having a ticket for Punctuality. Our diminution is mergly a series that this diminution is merely temporary, and has occurred only in the year 1868. He gives the number of emigrants colonized by the Society in 1865 at 527, in 1866, at 621, in 1867, at 638, and in 1868, at 451, making a total of 2,232 colonized in 451, making a total of 2,232 coionized in the four years since the war. He asserts that in no equal period of the Society's existence, except one, have so many emi-grants been settlet in Liberia. The number sent during the years named, it is stated, given but the smaller portion of the Harper's Magazine persons who applied for a passage. 'A Little six-year-old girl who at-
