The dress was cut across the breast, and blood spattered over it. The bonnet was dabbled with blood, and spots and stains of the same were found on most of the other clothing. The daw admit the number. WOULDN'D VOLE FOR HIM. -John G., whom every body in Pike knows, tells a bonnet was dabbled with blood, and spots and stains of the same were found on most of the other clothing. The dress was very much torn, one of the sleeves being entirely gone, and the other gar. ments bore traces of violence. The clothes were recognized as belonging to a girl by the name of Davis, who has been missing for some time past. She was last seen in Claysville on Friday week, but up to the time of writing no trace of her has been discovered.

her has been discovered. Mr. C. M. GUILD has presented to the Middlesex Mechanics' Association, at Lowell, Massachusetts, a 'memorial block," measuring about 28 inches in cir-block," measuring about 28 inches in cir-cumference. The block is certified to have been cut from the main limb of what modore Perry was received by the high officials of Japan. In 1853, and under it the treaty was signed subsequently by Commodore Perry, on the part of the United States, and by the high officials of Japan. name that was mentioned Liszt shook his head. "You will not guess it, gentle-men," he said at last; "and the world will be surprised to hear that the most Precautions Against Counterfeiting. The Washington correspondent of the will be surprised to hear that the most skillful octave player is no other than the Emperor Napoleon III." His hearors were greatly surprised, and Liszt then explained to them that Napoloon III, The Committee of Clerks appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury to examine into the affairs of the printing division, is charged with the duty of ascertaining the most practical means of defeating the skill and ingenuity of counterfeiters. owing to the peculiar construction of his hand, was able to surpass the most cele-brated planist in this point. In alluding to this story, Rochefort remarks that he should be delighted to hear Napoleon as an octave player, traveling in foreign countries and trying to earn an honest penny.

THE Paris correspondent of the Boston Journal speaks enthusiastically of the great care taken of, and consideration for, children of France. He declares it to be one of the fashions of Paris to make speone of the manions of raris to make spe-cial parties for children, and the same forms and coremonials are gone through that mark a party for adults. A very marked illustration of this was seen at the Chinese Embasy lately. The Ambausa-dor gave a series of entertainments to the achility of Wrance and the foreign Amnobility of France and the foreign Ambassadors. The series wound up with an entertainment, in the same grand style which had marked the others, given by little Gertrude Burlingame to her asso-clates, at which the American children in Paris were invited. The rooms were lighted in regal style. Servants were in fall costume, music was provided, and a handsomer dressed and a happler room
