THE CONET.

BY HANS CHRISTIAN ANDERSEN Now the comet came with its shining nucleus and its nebulous tail. At the great castle they gazed at it, and from the poor shanty; the crowd in the street stared at it, and the solitary man that went his way over the pathless heath. Every one had his own thoughts. "Come and look at the vault of heaven, come out and look at the wonderful sight," they cried, and all hastened to look. But inside the room there sat yet a little boy and his mother. "So many, so many!" cried the little fellow. "I can never blow all the soapwater into bubbles. There flies one year, there flies another!" exclaimed he, when a new bubble broke loose from the pipe and flew off. Some of them flew into his eyes; they burned and smarted, and caused tears to flow. In every bubble he saw a picture of the future, glimmering and glittering.

"This is the time to see the comet!" exclaimed the neighbors; "come out-of-doors, and don't sit in the room." And the mother took the boy by the hand; he had to lay the clay pipe aside, and leave his play with the soap-bubbles;

the comet was there.

This took place in Switzerland. But many years before that happened, the same event occurred in Denmark with Walraloke; he and dance and song and merriment run was also obliged to shoot an apple from his son's head, and he also hid an arrow in his bosom, to avenge the cruelty. several thousand years before that, the same story was written down in Egypt. Now the comet was expected again, and of that he spoke: and he related what people had said in the olden times, when it appeared last; they had said that a comet year was a good wine year, and that one could mix water with that wine without its being detected. Therefore the merchants thought so much of a comet

The sky was overcast for two weeks; they could not see the comet, and yet it was there. The old school-master sat in his little chamber adjoining the school-room. The old Bornholm clock of his grandfather's time stood in the corner; the heavy lead weights did neither asmove. The little cuckoo, that used to come forward in past times to cuckoo the passing hours, had for many years ceased to do his duty. Everything was dumb and silent; the clock was out of order. But the old clavichord near by, made in his father's time, had yet a spark of life left. The strings could yet ring; true, they were a little hoarse, but they could ring the melodies of a whole lifecould ring the melodies of a whole lifetime. With these, the old man remembered so much both joyful and sorrowful, that had happened in the long series of

when that come had come again, he remembered what his mother had said

Games that recall, in spirit, the Olympic games of three yards long, others insisted it was several millions of yards long—only a slight difference.

Most of the people who had said that, were dead and gone when the comet came again; but the little fellow, towards whom the mother had thought, "He will die soon," he still lived, had become old and white-haired. "White hairs are the flowers of old age," says the proverb, and he had a good many of such flowers. He school children said that he was very much; he knew history, and geography, and all that was history, and geography, and all that was known about heaven and its stars.

He saw the child and its plays, the youth and his fancies, the whole world, in wavy brightness, opening before his gazing eyes; and in that sunlight he saw his future grow. These were the bubbles of coming time; now, an old man, he heard from the clayichord's strings the melodies of passing time, mind's bubbles, with memory's variegated colors. And he heard his nurse's knitting song—

"For sure no Amazone Bid ever stockings knit."

And then the strings sang the song the old papa of the house was wont to sing to him, when a child:

Now the melodies of the first ball were ringing the minuet and molinasky; then the meancholy notes of the flute passed by; bubble after bubble they hurried on, very much like those that he blew with soap-water, when a little boy.

The great reason why physiciars do not cure Consumption is, they try to do too much; they give medicine to stop the cough, to stop chills, to stop might sweats, hectic fever, and by so doing they derange the whole digestive powers, locking up the secret ons, and eventually the patient sinks and dies.

Dr. Schenck, in his treatment, does not try to stop a cough, night sweats, chills or fever. Remove the tause, and they will all stop of their own accord. No one can be cured of Lonsumption, Liver Complaint, Dyteppsis, Catarrh, Canker, Ulcerated Throat, unless the liver and stomach are made heavity.

If a person has consumption, of course the lungs in some way are diseased, either tubercles, abcesses, bronchial irritation, pieura adhesion, or the lungs are a mass of infimmation and fast decaying. In such cases what must be done? It is not only the lungs are are wasting, but it is the whole body. The stomach and liver have lost their power to make blood out of fod. Now the only chance is to lake Dr. Schenck's three medicines, which will bring up a tone to the stomach, the patient will begin to want food, it will digest easily and make good blood; then the patient begins to grow, the lungs cor mence to heal up, and the patient gets fitchy and well. This is the only way to cure Consumption.

When there is no lung disease and only Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia, Schenck's Seawed Tonic and Mandr. ke Pilis are sufficient, without the Pulmonic Syrup. Take the Manorake Pilis recity harmless.
