By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette. 1 NEW YORK, June 2.

The New York Chamber of Commerce met to-day, Hon. Geo. Opedyke in the Chair. Gen. Hiram Walbridge submitted the following resolution:

Resolved. That the Chamber of Commerce of New York city heartly endorses the resolution of the Committee of Ways and Means, which unanimously passed the House of Representatives of the United States on the 23d of March, 1869, recommending the President of the United States to renew perceivations with 1869, recommending the President of the United States to renew negotiations with the Government of Great Britain, and press them, if possible, to a definite conclusion, for the arrangement of reciprocal trade with Canada, and securing to our citizens the freedom of the inshore fisheries of the coast of British North America.

America.

General Walbridge, in a lengthy speech, said while opposing any measures looking to the acquisition of Canada by force, he would welcome its people when they are willing to link their political fortness with the United States. He did not believe it good policy to He did not believe it good policy to attempt to coerce Canada by commercial restrictions into a union with the United States. Intimate commercial relations States. Intimate commercial relations should be brought about upon terms mutually beneficial, and the political result will follow in good time. General Walbridge stated the questions between the United States and the Provinces were, first, an interchange of natural products of soil upon such regimenal terms. were, first, an interchange of natural products of soil upon such reciprocal terms as may be agreed upon; second, accumulation of excise duties and of patent and copyright laws; third, free navigation of the river St. Lawrence and enlargement of the canal south; fourth, freedom of inshore fisheries of the coast of British America: fifth. regulation of of British America; fifth, regulation of transit trade.

He then proceeded to argue in favor of the resolutions and propositions above advanced, contending that whilst the Canadians will be satisfied with the convenience of selling in our markets in return for the enlargement of the St. Lawrence Canal by them free of cost to the United States, the freedom of the St. Lawrence and fisheries, yet that convenience of our markets to them will really be no competition to our farmers and absolute benefit to our merchants. Our capital and credit, transit trade. our narmers and absolute benefit to our merchants. Our capital and credit, together with the fact that we have free access to the ocean at all seasons of the year, would be a great convenience to Canadians, but their use also necessarily implies that in using our capital, our credit and our ports, we derive the advancredit and our ports, we derive the advan-tages that possession of capital, credit and ports give to the community. In other words, we become the merchants of four millions of people, whom we are

In February, 1868, Secretary Seward expressed a wish for the settlement of these claims, and suggesting an international conference. Subsequently Secretary Seward desired that the naturalization and San Juan questions should first be settled, and these were accordingly concluded. In October Minister Johnston, in behalf of Secretary Seward, proposed that the Alabama claims be referred to a committee formed of an equal number of British and Americans, with power to call upon an umpire in case of disagreement. upon an umpire in case of disagreement, whose decision should be final. Lord whose decision should be final. Lord Stanley responded that the point on which the former negotiations broke off was mainly the claims that the Americans would raise before the arbitration. The question of the alleged premature recognition by her Majesiy's government of the state of the beliggerency of the Confederacy would not be taken up, and thereby cause the government to depart from the position already taken, but that he saw difficulty in so framing the reference than by mutual framing the reference than by consent either a tacit or express difficulty consent either a tactt or express difficulty might be avoided. The negotiations thereafter proceeded rapidly on the basis of this agreement, by which both nations were to be blended for the purpose of making things run smoothly, and a convention was drawn up and signed in December, England conceding that the place of meeting should be Washington.

NUMBER 125

The "Friendship" in Litigation. The little dispute which resulted in the disbandment of the old and the organization of the new "Friendship" Hose Company, in Allegheny, has assumed a new phase of a decidedly interesting character. It will be remembered that the "bolting" members, claiming that Councils had no authority to disband them, and that they were the real organzation; carried off the Prize Hose Carriage and nearly all the equipments of the company. Proceeding further in the maintenance of their claims, they demanded of the Treasurer, Mr. H. R. Davis, the funds in his hands, amounting to about seven hundred dol-lars. Mr. Davis, by legal advice, refused their demand, retained possession of the money, and when the company were organized handed it in to that treasury. Not satisfied with this arrangement, however, and failing to make any other, the "bolters" have at last instituted prothe "bolters" have at last instituted proceedings in equity, in the Court of Common Pleas, with a view of compelling Mr. Davis to accede to their demands.
The bill is signed by James Hunter and seventeen members of the old company, who assert they have been associated together as the Friendship Hose Company since April, 1868; have regularly received money for their services from the city authorities; and that seven hundred dollars collected by them was placed in the hands of the Treasurer, Mr. H. R.
Davis, who refused to hand it over.

Somerville, the regular elected Treas-urer, a preliminary injunction in the meantime to be issued, to prevent him from paying out or dispassing of the funder from paying out or disposing of the funds from paying out or disposing of the funds in any other way.

So the case stands at present, but it is probable the court will finally settle the matter in a few days. It is but proper to say that Mr. Davis is acting under legal advice in the whole affair, and acted accordingly in turning the money over to the Treasurer of the new organization.
