A LETTER PROT BOSTON.

[Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Gazette.] Boston, June 21, 1869. EDITORS GAZETTE: The great event in Boston's history has come and gone: The people breathe free, and are almost surprised to find that they live at all without some sensation.

Your exchanges will doubtless give you all the details of the jubilee, and it would be labor thrown away for me to go would be labor thrown away for me to go over them. There appears to be but one opinion (except on the part of the New York World,) and that is commendatory. As for myself, I was more than gratified. From the first note of the chorus, any o appeared to make more fuss than there was any necessity for, and to spread himself considerably. Mr. Gilmore I met privately, and was much pleased with him. He is a modest, pleasant-spoken man, and although grat-ified and tickled at the success of his scheme, he does not appear to plume him-self upon it at all self upon it at all.

The Executive Committee of the Ju-bilee gave a concert on Sabbath evening, which was largely attended, although the building was not over two-thirds full. The programme was made up of repetitions of pieces given during the week, except in two or three instances, and was very enjoyable. The chorus was cut down about half and the orchestra more. But the great, unapproachable organ was still there, (as it will be until August 1st,) and pealed forth its immense harmonies.

The builders, Messrs, E. & G. G. Hook, were themselves surprised at the effect of the instrument; it is splendid. The organ is at least four times as powerful as any organ in this country, and is undoubtedly the most powerful instrument in the world. It is to be hoped that when its world. It is to be noped that when its work in the Coliseum is done, that it will not be thrown out of use, but will be transferred to some church where it may continue its grand mission of peace and Small Bed Chambers. There is reason to believe that more cases of dangerous and fatal diseases are gradually engendered annually by the habit of aleeping in small, unventilated rooms than have occurred from a cholera atmosphere in any year since it made its appearance in this country. Very many sons sleep in eight by ten rooms; that persons steep in eight by ten rooms; that is, in rooms the length and breauth of which, multiplied again, by ten for the height of the chamber, would make just eight hundred cubic feet, while the cubic fact for each hed. than these land lords of St. Albans. If or an average of one hundred thousand to a peerage of their own, an appropriate title would be Duke of Butterland, and this round-faced woman before me, whose requisition to carry people to and from the concerts, and all were more than full. The streets near the Coliseum were in a state of blockade more or less of the time. The street cars had a bad trick of getting off the track, and wagons would break down. There must have been a big axe to grind somewhere in this scheme. There were great doubts of its success, and the expenses had to be guaranteed. The We have not yet been able to understand why St. Albans is able to make the

The Richen accompanied by a manner. The Bishiop, accompanied by a young man, who he said was his nephew, had stopped at the principal hotel of the small Spanish town, which was kept by a small Spanish town, which was kept by a middla-aged woman. The nephew courted this landlady, married her and caused the Bighop to bless his union with her. No sooner had the wedding taken place that the Bighop and the member sold the than the Bishop and the nephew sold the property of the landlady and decamped with the funds. The scamps are now said to be in Paris, where several Spanish detectives are hunting for them.
