PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

OFFICE OF PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, FRIDAY, June 25, 1869. Flour and Grain continue to attract ousiderable attention and for the time being, almost everything else is lost sight of. From the character of the adyices on Thursday, it would seem that a reaction had set in and that the top has been reached; and while it is possible that there may be similar movements between now and harvest, it is not likely that they will amount to much, as the public generally are becoming too smart to become excited over manipulations of this character. While it is true that the recent flurry was started by an increased export demand, yet it was not owing to this entirely. There is little doubt but what it was taken advantage of by cliques in Chicago, New York and other places, carrying large stocks, and who were anxious to sell out as quickly as possible, and to the best advantage. It is admitted that exporters have been buying considerable Flour and Grain, but this was not of itself sufficient cause for the advance and it is not probable that there would have been much of an advance had it not have been for the manipulations of speculators. The admanipulations of speculators. The advices from almost every quarter speak very encouragingly of the Wheat crop and, judging from present indications, the yield will doubtless be the heaviest in the history of this country.

PITTSBURGH IRON MARKET.

OFFICE OF PITTSBURGH GAZETTE,) FRIDAY, June 25, 1869. The Iron market, in a general way, presents nothing that is really new or important. The demand for metal continues light, and notwithstanding the offerings and arrivals, are limited, prices are weak, and the tendency is downward. It is not to be expected that the iron business would be active at this season of the year, as the time is now at hand when the mills usually suspend operations to take stock and make repairs, and the consumption of metal is always very much restricted during
