The Shugart Poisoning Case.—Continuation of the trial of the alleged assassin of George W. Shugart.

Highly Interesting.—The trial of the alleged assassin of George W. Shugart is highly interesting.

Daughter of the Prisoner.—The trial of the alleged assassin of George W. Shugart is highly interesting.

Overcome and the Proceedings Interrupted.—The Commonwealth surprised in their witness—the prisoner faints.

Second Time, is Carried from the Court-Room, and the Court Adjourns with the Day.—Subsequent interview with the prisoner.

Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Gazette.—Butler, Saturday June 26.

Today, as will be observed, the character of the evidence elicited was decidedly the most exciting since the commencement of the Shugart murder case.

The "passages" between the counsel were quite sly and sharp at times, and evinced the exceeding thoroughness and watchfulness with which the proceedings are being conducted.

The testimony and incidents of the day were the universal theme of discussion throughout the town after the adjournment of Court, occasioning great curiosity and expectation as to the next step to be taken.

Monday's proceedings promise to be of an equally interesting nature.

MARTIN'S CASE CONTINUED.—The Court assembled at the usual hour in the morning and began the fifth day's proceedings.

After the opening, Mr. McJunkin, counsel for the defense, called to the attention of the Court the fact that the Commonwealth was in possession of a letter from Mrs. Shugart to her daughter, which was dated on the day of the murder.

for his death. I can't remember the number of days. I don't know whether it was the same color as the first. I asked for "rat poison." I think it was white. I think it was called arsenic. Mother sent me for it. I gave her the rat poison. I think it was called arsenic. Mother sent me for it. I gave her the rat poison.

I was at the jail to see mother after she was put in. The first day I went up I sat down beside her. I said, "Now, mother, tell me the truth. Tell me all I know about this, and tell me you sent me for rat poison." Mother said, "Yes, tell the truth; tell me the truth. Tell me all I know about this, and tell me you sent me for rat poison."

AN EXCITING PRISONER—MRS. SHUGART'S DAUGHTER.

At this juncture the prisoner, Mrs. Shugart, who seemed very much depressed previously, manifested signs of sickness and the proceedings were suspended while she was assisted to a seat near a window, just inside the bar.

She had hardly reached the seat when she fainted and became pale as a death. Her daughters Amelia and Maggie immediately went to her side, and, thinking her dead, commenced sobbing and crying loudly, creating intense excitement.

The large crowd of spectators outside the bar manifested their feeling of anxiety and sympathy by rising to their feet and eagerly leaning forward to view the scene, while those inside attempted restoration by bathing the head of the sufferer. She was revived in a few minutes, and sufficiently to attend to her daughters, and was thus taken into another room of the building.

She appeared very pale and exhausted, but expressed herself as being somewhat better than on Saturday, and expected to be strong enough to attend Court on Monday, as she was anxious for the trial to proceed.

We were informed by the officers of the jail that when she returned from the Court on Saturday she remained unconscious for some time. In response to our inquiries she said she could remember nothing from the time of leaving the court room on Saturday until she awakened to consciousness and found herself lying in the hospital hours afterwards.

Saturday morning she ate scarcely anything for breakfast, and, feeling quite sick, took some medicine. She appeared quite revived and sufficiently to get through the day, which, however failed to have the desired effect.

She conversed quite freely, and during the conversation at times became very much animated. She firmly asserted her innocence, and thought that she had not fainted, that Heaven would be her home.

In conversation further she said she knew nothing of the crime of which she was charged. The poison had been bought for the purpose stated by Annie, and what became of it afterwards she did not know. She had lived agreeably with her husband twenty-five years, had raised a large family, and always endeavored to do right with them.

INTERVIEW WITH THE PRISONER.—Sunday evening we called at the jail and were permitted to have a conversation with the prisoner.

She had been removed from the cell into the match room of the building, and being unable to sit up was provided with a comfortable cot, through the kindness of Sheriff Stroh.

She appeared very pale and exhausted, but expressed herself as being somewhat better than on Saturday, and expected to be strong enough to attend Court on Monday, as she was anxious for the trial to proceed.

Tall oaks from little acorns grow. Large streams from little rills flow. Seven years ago the PLANTATION BROTHERS were but little known. To-day there is not a nook or corner of our land where they are not found and used. The sale has reached the enormous number of Five Millions of Bottles annually, and it is constantly increasing. It only shows what can be done with a really good medicine, and a systematic course of making it known. Perhaps no medicine in the world was ever so deservedly popular as the PLANTATION BROTHERS. Go where you will, among the rich or poor, and you will always find these BROTHERS in use. Their merit has become an established fact, and we cordially recommend them in cases of dyspepsia, loss of appetite, chills and fever, headache, &c., &c.
