The Gettysburg Monument. A correspondent of the N Y. Time writes from Gettysburg of the Soldiers' National Nonument:

The monument now approaching completion and to be dedicated on the 1st of July, is the most imposing memento of the civil war anywhere in the country and will not be finished at a cost of less than $50,000, although the original estimate was but $25,000. It is from designs by J. G. Batterson, of Hartford, Conn. who also furnished the clay models of the statuary, which were worked out in marble at Rome, by Rudolph Rogers. The superstructure is sixty feet high, consistpg of a massive pedestal, twenty-five feet square at the base, and the die and cap crowned with a three quarter globe, on which stands a colossal statue of the Genius of Liberty, holding in her right hand the victor's wreath of laurel, and clasping with the left a sheathed sword.

War is personned by an amount of the battle relates to History the story of the battle the monument commemorates, while History, with stylus and tablet, is chiseled as recording the achievements of the field. Peace is symbolized by a statue of a cog-wheel, hammer and chis Plenty is represented by a female figure with a sheaf of wheat and fruits, as emblematic of peace and abundance as the soldier's crowning triumph. The cornice and plinth above the ma the pedestal are octagonal and heavily moulded, and on the plinth rests an octagonal moulded base, bearing upon its face the national arms in high relief. The panel of the main die, on the west side between the statues, has engraved on it:

GETTYSBURG.

It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to the cause which they here gave the last full measure of devotion—that we here highly resolve that the dead shall not have died in vain; that the nation shall, under God, have a new birth of freedom, and that the Government of the people, by the people, and for the people, shall no perish from the earth,"-Lincoln, Nov.

The monument itself is executed granite and the five statues in marble, so that when completed it will have the same The Japanese who are beginning to general effect as the cemetery in which it will it be by Thursday, next, for Peace ry have been put in place. Mr. Wills, however, is sanguine that, except the two non-arrived statues, all will be finished in time for the final ceremonies, and as he is giving his personal attention to the work, there is reason to believe that he will not be disappointed. It is impossible, of course, to indulge in any present unfinished state, but it can be said that in the expression of eager recital thrown into the face of War, and in the absorbed listening aspect and attitude of History, the sculptor has commendably worked out the idea of the designer. is lamentable, however, that the marble of both these statues has been badly disfigured during the passage across the ocean, in consequence of gross carelessness of package and stowage, and, unsightly as they now appear, it is feared that some of the stains can never be wholly eradicated A Submarine Steamship. Accounts of a new plan for building war vessels are given in the German papers. Otto Vogel proposes to construct a submarine steamship, and the Berlin Borssnetitung asserts that the Prussian admiralty has approved of the plans submitted for inspection. The vessel, covered with strong plating, is entirely below the surface of the sea, with the exception of the deck, which is surmounted by a vaulted iron roof of immense strength. Beneath this covering heavy guns are placed, so that the whole greatly resembles a first rate iron clad. It is said, however, that besides all the advantages of such men-of war, the new ship may be entirely submerged, and in this position is so completely under command that it can outweather a storm or attack an enemy with submarine cannon and torpe does. Mr. Vogel is now engaged in con-structing a large model, twenty-fonr feet in length, which will soon be finished.
