Ex-Secretary Seward has been welcomed to California with high honors from all parties.

An anonymous correspondent, who considers himself very badly treated because we did not give him the credit of originating the idea of forming a park at the Point, seeks redress by an appeal to the Dispatch, which paper claims for its late editor, Mr. Foster, that honor.

When Mr. Roseberry accepted the portfolio laid down by Mr. Bonar, he did not seem to have deemed it necessary to discharge any of the subordinates in his department merely because they had obtained the positions which they held from the hand of another man.

Our friends who support the legality of the action of a fragment of the Indiana Legislature, in ratifying the XVth Article, derive no comfort from the late decision of the Supreme Court of that State upon the "Specific Appropriation" law.

Believers in the sanctity of the day have no proper place for idling in the streets. For all other the laws provide, and their enforcement will suffice to maintain the peace, protecting all lawful rights and repressing any infringement thereof.

Attorney General HOAR can ever advise the State Department to accept the sufficiency of the present action of Indiana upon the Article.

Tragical opposition are still, as heretofore, loud in expressing their devotion to the interests of soldiers for the Union. In the way of lip-service, on the eve of an election, nothing could present a more touching proof of Christian charity than their eagerness to forgive the "Lincoln hirelings" and enfold the survivors in the most fraternal embrace.

It has long been the fashion to deride and laugh at New Jersey, to call it a foreign country, and to sneer at its subjugation to the Camden and Amboy railroad. Particularly in New York and Philadelphia has this been the case, and yet those cities would be in a lamentable condition were it not for that peninsular State and its dominant railway.

Yesterday, commenting on the Sunday laws, we avowed the conviction that theological controversies are commonly conducted with less reason and more heat than other sorts of discussions.

That as American citizens, we welcome these men of other lands, we welcome them, we solemnly warn them that by such a defiant innovation of our most sacred and time-honored rights, for which our fathers died, and which the fathers of this country so bravely proclaimed and urged, they must be regarded as deliberately declaring war upon our institutions and aiming to destroy the foundations of good order and the morals, and we shall be constrained to regard and treat them as the pronounced enemies of our country and our liberties.

A question now in agitation is whether stealing is, or is not, a disease. The friends of many thieves have endeavored to excuse them, so often, by pleading kleptomaniacs, and it has become a sort of by-word and indiscriminately used, by reporters and people generally, as about synonyms with larceny.

Such of our good citizens as may disapprove of the public proceedings of a portion of the people to-morrow, will show a consistency between their opinions and conduct, by carefully avoiding any public participation as spectators or otherwise in the proposed "celebration" of the day.

Travelers in Europe have admired the order, decorum and enjoyment of the Sabbath in Dresden, Frankfurt, Berlin, Cassel, &c. The mass of people attending church in the forenoon, and in the afternoon, frequently in company with their pastors, seeking recreation and health in the beautiful public grounds which abound in these cities, thereby adding two blades of happiness where one only existed before.

BETTER AND BETTER.

Our Republican Administration has thus far been four months in office, and four monthly reports upon the state of the public finances have been made by the Secretary of the Treasury. In every instance these reports have shown better figures than the public dreamed of up to the very hour of their announcement.

PROOF FURNISHED.

Yesterday, commenting on the Sunday laws, we avowed the conviction that theological controversies are commonly conducted with less reason and more heat than other sorts of discussions.

for answer the very words we have written. So, too, let us quote the 5th resolution, as follows: "That as citizens of Pennsylvania, and of Pennsylvania, we call upon our public mind to take earnest ground in defense of our Sabbath rights, and we warn all timid and truckling politicians who are afraid to speak out, that they may rather be afraid not to speak out, when our sacred privileges as a law-abiding and Sabbath-keeping people, are thus shamefully set at naught."

Tell us, gentlemen, is it not possible there are "truckling politicians," and "truckling" among those who are not politicians, on your side, as well as on the other? Sunday breaking is a very common thing. The daily newspaper printers and the manufacturers of this city are nearly all Sunday breakers.

On motion the report was received and the Board requested to have seven hundred copies printed, five hundred in English and two hundred in German, for distribution in the ward.

The highest duty and the dearest privilege of men and women is the public and private worship of God. That public worship may be decently observed it is indispensable that, either by authority or consent, a specified time be set apart for it, and that no interferences should be permitted.

Something of Interest to those Seeking Homes or Investments in Real Estate. From personal knowledge we would advise those of our readers seeking homes or investments in real estate to obtain a copy of the "Pittsburgh Real Estate Register," on the ground that it may suggest eligible opportunities for investment that individual efforts would not discover.

On Thursday morning an explosion occurred at Dupont's powder mill, in Wilmington, Delaware. Two workmen, named James Malloy and Peter Malloy, were instantly killed, being blown to a height of over one hundred feet. The bodies were horribly mutilated, fragments of flesh being scattered in all directions. The building was entirely destroyed.

Capt. George Egan, of the 3d District Police Station, at Allegheny, N. Y., on Wednesday, found on the deck what appeared to be a small ball of clay, but on attempting to cut it with his knife it exploded, scattering his hand and inflicting a slight wound on his forehead. The ball passed out of the Captain's hand and entered the wall of the room.

THE SYMPTOMS OF CONSUMPTION. Paleuess of the countenance. Spitting, or expectoration of pus. Thin perspiration at night. It is sometimes streaked with blood. There is chilliness or shiverings, and flashes of heat. There is a peculiar dryness of the eyes. The hair of the head falls off. At times there is a circumscribed red spot on one or both cheeks.

There is swelling of the hands and feet. There is great debility and emaciation of the body. There is a high colored state of the urine. There is a deposit on standing like brick dust. There is oftentimes a great thirst. The blood is carried through the arteries and veins.

The pulse is over a hundred, and even as high as one hundred and forty a minute. The veins on the surface of the body are blue, thin, nasal, and languid. As the disease progresses the debility increases. The expectoration becomes more copious. The finger nails are incurved. There is a marasmus and wasting of all the powers of life.

There is often pain in one or both lungs. There is often diarrhoea and faintness. There is great sinking of the vital forces. When there are tubercles, small abscesses, tuberculous matter will be expectorated. This tuberculous matter has an offensive odor. An examination with a lung sound, rattling and gurgling is heard. There is always more or less cough.

Some of these symptoms are always present in pulmonary consumption, and occur or quite all of them in different stages of the disease. No disease of which we have any knowledge is so common and so almost invariably fatal, yet so curable as the case if the earlier symptoms were needed. Time and again we have called attention to Dr. KEYSER'S LUNG CURE, which will in every instance of a recent cough arrest the progress of the disease and hinder its development, and even after it has become settled will often cure it and avert further decay of the lungs.
