GOSSIP ABOUT GEO. WASHINGTON. His House and Habits in Philadelphia. (From a contribution to Hearts and Home, by Sarah G. Greenwood.)

When I asked this noble relic of the past for his recollection of Washington, he said: "Bless you, I have little to tell. I was so very young at the time when I knew him that I have only childish recollections, more trifles, which will scarcely interest you."

Washington's house, said Mr. Gray, "was thought a very fine mansion. It was what was called a 'house and a hall'—that is, the hall was not in the middle, but had two windows on the right, and one window at the left. It was two stories and a half high, with dormer windows. It was rented for the President, of Robert Morris, but originally belonged to Galloway, the Tory."

have been arrested as accomplices in the crime. A New Jersey man is said to have proved the existence of a sea serpent, by being devoured by one the other day. Some persons think it was a shark, and others say it was the undertow.

Rev. Phillips Brooks, probably the most popular preacher in Philadelphia, where he has for some years been pastor of Holy Trinity Church, is said to have now accepted a call from Trinity Church, Boston.

The grand uncle of the sun, brother-in-law, moon and step-son of the other-in-law's aunt of the eclipse, otherwise known as the Emperor of China, is about to be married, as he is now fourteen years old.

Miss Fanny Janauschek's present ambition is said to be, that she may become the first actress of the English stage. She is now living in New York studying English and occasionally giving private exhibitions of her progress.

Chicago has raised $20,000 to pay for organizing a base-ball nine, which can beat the Cincinnati nine next year. Base-ball carried on in this way is no longer a manly sport, but attains the same level as faro and keno, which is but little above prize fighting and fowling.

Washington, the grooms stood aside, silent and respectful, while he examined every stall and manger, and regularly went over every horse—mean, he passed over a portion of his stall at last, while hand, always looking to see if it was soiled, or if any loose hairs had come off on it.
