PETROLEUM MARKET.

OFFICE OF PITTSBURGH GAZETTE WEDNESDAY, August 11, 1869. The oil market continues dull and stagnant, with but little prospect at present of any immediate improvement. Compared with yesterday, prices are lower, but it does not seem to make much difference which way it goes, much difference which way it goes, there is no chance for business. If Crude crude could be forced down to 12½ or 13 cents, or Refined put up to 34 (@35, then there would be some chance for the trade; but until it does one thing or the other, the stagnation which has so long prevabled will continue. Some of our refiners, who sold ahead at good round figures, contemplate buying Re-fined to cover their contracts and sell their Crude, and those who are able to do this will no doubt realize handsomit to obth, although that would not be al-together legitimate for a manufacturer, as it turns the refiner into a speculator. However, it is contended that the trade has got into that peculiar shape, that is almost impossible for the manufactu-rer, or suybody else, to do what is famil-iarly termed a legitimate business. BEFINED. Spot oil, comparad with yesterday, is lower with a sale to 600 bbis at 31½; and 2,000 lest haif of september at 32½; and 2,000 lest haif of september at 32½; and 2,000 lest haif of regin markets. CRUDE. Sale 2,000 bbis, seller this month at 143; 2,000 seller all year at 14½, with 3400 mor a diver of nor or to Butalos.
