BURGLARS have been ransacking Ty THERE, is small pox at Harrisonville, Centre county.

THERE are fifty slate quarries in active operation in Lehigh and Northampton IN SOME parts of Lebanon county the peach trees are breaking down with the weight of fruit. ERIE has an Academy of Music said by the Dispatch, to be one of the prettiest halls in the State. TYRONE wants water works. It will cost but $12,000 to secure a fine supply of water, and the Tyronians have raised thus far $8,000.

Some local burglars entered the house of a Mrs. Gorman, at Conemaugh, last Monday, and stole eatables, drinkables, wearables and jewelry.

MISS CLARA LLOYD, daughter of W. M. Lloyd, of Altoons, received a compound fracture of her left leg, caused by jumping from a carriage, the horses being fractious, Tuesday of last week.

JOHNSON'S powder mill, located in Spring Garden township, about two miles south of York, exploded on Saturday evening last between six and seven o'clock. The wooden celling in the dryociock. The wooden ceiling in the drying house caught fire from the heated stove pipe, which passed through it, and this communicating with the powder caused the disaster. The building was completely demolished, but no one about the establishment was injured. The rethe establishment was injured. The report of the explosion was heard in York.
The powder factory also had its roof torn off, and was otherwise injured by the concussion .- York Republican.

THE Tiogs county Agitator says: "Mr. F. M. Laya Fainting Person Down.

Says a physician in the Hearth and It is surprising how eagerly everybody rushes at a fainting person and strives to raise him up, and especially to keep the head erect. There must be an instinctive apprehension that if a person seized with a fainting or other fit fall into the recumbent position, death is more imminent. I must have driven a mile to day while a lady, fainting, was held upright. I found her pulseless, white and apparently dying, and I believe if I had delayed ten minutes longer she would really have died. I laid her head down on a lower level than her body, and immediately color returned to her lips and cheeks, and she became conscious. To the excited group of friends I said: "Always remember this fact—namely: fainting is caused by a want of blood in the brain; the heart ceases to act with sufficient force to send the usual amount of blood to the brain, and hence the person loses consciousness because the annual fair for marriageable young girls? The persistency, not to say "cheek," of some charitable solicitors is astonish ing. A sanctimonious looking person made his appearance at the residence of a clergyman, near Hartford, Ct., and stated the object of his visit, which was to secure funds in aid of a Western college. After some conversation, the agent said: "What I want is this, that you will direct me to people of wealth who are in the last stages of consumption, or are hereditarily disposed to apoplexy. I find this class of persons are more easily reached than those who possess means and are in the possession of perfect health. In one western town I found a gentleman who had received two apoelectic strokes, and he put our college in his will for $15,000, and a lady consumptively inclined gave us $10,000. Neither is dead yet, but you see the importance is dead yet, but you see the importance of getting such people on the right side." The clergyman, after listening to this "argument," said that the members of his church were, so far as he knew, in the enjoyment of good health, and it would be impossible to select any who gave promise of early death. The agent gave promise of early death. The agent, upon looking about the town further, ascertained that the general health of

THERE is a great convocation of North-

A French Monk on Protestantism and Judaism. Pater Hyacinthe, one of the most eloquent of modern preachers, is reported to have said in a discourse delivered on the 24th of June at Paris, before the Lique permanents et internationals de la Paix.
where also the Chief Rabbi of France, M. Isldore, was present, the following remarkable words:

"There are three religions which govern the world, and which are equal before God—the Jewish religion, and the Catholic religion and the Protestant religion."
The enthusiasm of the audience manifested itself by thundering applause. The voice of a young man was heard saying, "This is blasphemy; a monk dare not speak so." The audience again applauded the Catholic Pater. This incident causes La Reforme to cite the sentence of the Talmudists, "Hasside oumoth Ha-olam yesh lahem 'helk laolam habba." which translated means the righteous of all nations will share the eternal beatitude of the world to come. The Figaro, copy or the world to come. The rigaro, copying from La Reforme, adds: "This only confirms what a great many people have known long ago—that Judaism, excepting some local and merely traditional ceremonies, is one of the most rational religious systems which humanity has ever known.

Swimming baths on the Thames have recently been advocated by the London Times, and the construction of floats, uch as are to be seen along the quay sides on the Seine at Paris, have been projected. Another London journal proposes the erection of an iron building, one thousand feet square, covered with glass, with a tank, lined with white tiles, and having a depth of water varying gradually from four feet to fourteen, and renewed constantly from a running stream. It is asserted that such an establishment would be frequented for bathing purposes during the six months of the year, and in the winter could be converted into a skating rink. The cost of admission, however, would be high, and is placed at half-a-crown, or 62 cents in gold, for a single bath. The supply of pure water is also another difficulty to be surmounted, and it is asserted that before such a swimming bath could be established a river or lake must be brought into London by aqueducts, capable of furnishing fifty million gallons a day, On the other hand it is suggested that a bath of the dimensions given could be constructed on the flat land by the Thames side, below the point where the river begins to be contaminated by the sewerage. VISITORS to London, says the London News, have been rather astonished by our Baby Show; but what shall we say to an ily of real ghosts like this ought to be equal to the sea serpent.

If, on the other hand, the match is not equal, or for some other reason unsatisfactory, then the parents begin to cry their live merchandise once more. OLIVE LOGAN tells of a terrible child at Long Branch: "When the dessert comes he has cast aside the bill of fare, having eaten it 'all the way down;' and here it is that his appetite shows itself at its most wonderful. He has a large sliccof two or wonderful. He has a large sliccol two or three kinds of pie, some pudding, some blanc mange, some trifie, two dishes of ice-cream, a plate of cakes, and nuts and raisins. Ye gods! He munches and munches—like the sallor's wife in 'Mac-hoth', who had chestynts in her lonmunches—like the sandr's which in her lap-both,' who had chestnuts in her lap. When he positively can can no more he rises. Heavens! how many pounds has he gained since dinner? "More nuts!' he gasps out, with eyes starting from their sockets. Mamma pats him on the head, smiles at the assembled diners, who despise him for a little beast, as who should say, 'Isn't he a darling?' and leads him triumphantly out. THE first gentleman at Long Branch is a waiter at the Stetson House, and he carries his head as though it was supported by a military stock. He has the air of a clergyman, which is heightened by the community was too good for speculation with death, and decided to leave at once for some other locality.

MARE TWAIN gives a melarge of Boston reminiscences in the Alta California, in which, among other things, he says:—

THE Saginaw Enterprise has the following item: "Four boys in Saginaw City conceived the idea of utilizing the kite to answer the purposes of a mule or draft horse. A small four wheeled declined cart was record into service in drait noise. A small four wheeled de-livery cart was pressed into service, in which they packed themselves. Then the engineer of the scheme let up his kite, a very large one, holding the string in both hands, and the tongue of the cart be-tween his less for steering in process. A
