WHAT MATTERS IT!

It matters little where I was born. Or if my parents were sich or poor; Whether Lies shrank at the colu world's si. Or walked in the pride or wealth secure; Bat whether - live an honest man And hold my integrity firm in my clutch, I tell you, my brother, plain as I can, It matters much:

It matters little h 'w long I stay In a world of soriow, sin and care: Whether in youth 1 am called away, Or live ill my bones of fiesh are bare: But whether I wo the best a can To soften the weight of adversity's touch On the faded cheek to my fellow man, It matters much:

It matters much. It matters little where be my grave, Or on the iand or on the sea; By purling brook, or 'neach is tormy wave, It matters little or naught to me; But whether the sagel of death comes down And marks my brow with his loving to loch. As one that shall wear the victor's erown, It matters much? Richard Cor. -Phila, Bulletin.

On yesterday week, a very sad accident happened in Licking Creek township, which cast a gloom over the whole neigh-borhood. Two young men, sons of Mr. borhood. Two young men, sons of Mr. Frank Sipes, of said township, were en-gaged in hauling bark, and in coming down the hill, a lad about eleven years of age, was walking beside the wagon, and it is supposed slipped and fell, when the wagon passed over his head, crushing it in and killing the boy instantly. The clock there arises a glussity horior in the dry and a rattling and drumming on the dry skin the shamin sits on; bears growl, snakes hiss, squirrels leap about the room. At last all is over, and behold, in walks the shaman free and unbound from out-side. No one doubts, says Castren, that it was the spirits who were drumming. elder brother, aged about nineteen years, was driving and did not know anything of the accident until he had gone come who released the shaman from his bonds. distance, when he looked back and saw | The unbinding trick is not unknown in his brother lying in the road dead.-Ful. ton Democrat. Centreville, had a gun for repair containing a load of powder, ball and ramrodbarrel as to make it necessary to take out the breech. He then placed the end of the barrel in the fire to melt out the ball, the barrel in the fire to melt out the ball, the barrel in the fire to melt out the ball, having first cleaned out-as he supposed all the powder. At that moment the whole contents were discharged, the ram-red taking effect in the abdomen of the deceased; who, at the time, was standing near the muzzle of the barrel. After mine or ten hours of severe pain death relieved his suffering. THE Franklin Repository says: On Wednesday last a party hunting berries on the Cross Mountain, South of the Little Cove, found the remains of a child, which upon examination proved to be which upon examination proven to be those of the little daughter of James Strealy, who was lost in the Cove Moun-tains about three months ago. It seems that after becoming separated from her companions, the little creature wandered of four or first miles among the mounoff four or five miles among the moun-tains, and then perished from hunger. At the spot where she was found a quantity of moss had been collected, which she had arranged in the form of a play house against or under a ledge of rocks. The remains of the child were identified by means of the hair and vestiges of clothing which were strewn around. THE Oxford Press Bays: Wm.
