PETROLEUM MARKET. OFFICE OF PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, THURSDAY, August 19, 1869. The sales were unusually large to-day, larger than any preceding day for sometime past, but compared with yesterday, efined is lower, and crude is weaker, with more offering, and futures are lower. The trade generally, however, continues in an unsettled and very unstaisfactory condition, and the indications for the future are not as bright as could be desired. In the present condition of affairs, there is nothing in the business for either refiners or dealers, and even "outsiders" who heretofore, would occasionally take a "venture," have, as a general thing withdrawn, and are giving their time and attention to their regular avocations, not caring to take the risk attending a venture of this

PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

OFFICE OF PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, THURSDAY, August, 19 1869. The most important feature we have to notice is a slight weakness in the grain market, which is in consequence of the advices from the west, together with unfavorable news from Liverpool, ed.

There were rumors some little time ago that the weather in Europe was unprosperous to the growing crops, and on the strength of this report prices there took an upward turn, but during the past few days the dispatches from that country have uniformly quoted fair weather, and prices are now tending downward. The indications now are that unless there is a turn in the foreign market, prices must recede.
