FINANCE AND TRADE

OFFICE OF PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, SATURDAY, August 21, 1869. The downward speculation in gold reached 131% at noon on Saturday, from which it recovered to 131% to 132, The downward course of the premium is assisted by the large offers of influential parties who, having bought gold at high prices and being unable to effect an advance, now do all in their power to depress the premium as much as possible in order to buy for a rise, since the time is favorable for that, should the Government not sell largely. The amount of floating gold in the market is much reduced and for the two months of September and October it will cost little or noting to carry large gold halances without extra charges of interest, and should speculative sales remain uncovered, gold would command interest for loaning. For this and other reasons, concerning crop reports from England, a rise of several points in the next few

The depression in the gold premium has influenced a downward movement in Government bonds, and capitalists, seeing how little it takes to cause a reaction in the high priced currency value of our bonds, are holding back with investments for the present. Even if the policy of the Administration is to Messrs. BABNEY, MORGAN & CO., 53 | improve our depreciated currency by in the policy of the Administration is to improve our depreciated currency by placing the currency market price of our securities on a par with gold, the past week has freely demonstrated that that objective point can be reached at a much lower point of the market value of bonds by reducing the gold premium at a favorable moment, and by publishing the amount of bonds to be purchased from week to week. If this policy had been pursued since July first, the government would have saved from to 7 per cent. on the entire purchase of bonds, now amounting to 35 millions. The movement west and south, which is now beginning, will, most likely, cause a stringent money market during September and October, and a retrograde movement in bonds is almost a foregone stringent money market during september and October, and a retrograde movement in bonds is almost a foregone stringent money beginning.

Stocks are dull and heavy. New York stocks are taking the lead and the Western roads, for which a rising tendency was manifested a fortnight ago, follow in the same direction. The consolidation of several roads so far have not benefitted speculators as much as the New York and Fort Wayne roads. The game is understood, and too many haveing been attracted it does not pay any more for the originators.

In our local stock and bond markets matters look dull and devoid of interest. A few thousand bonds of any description will samply all the depend description will supply all the demand, and croakers care little to carry bonds at a moment when discounting will pay Money commands from 8 to 10 per Money commands from 6 cent. for prime paper.
