The Nittsburgh Suzette

THE ART OF SLEEPING.

[From the Boston Traveller.] Some persons have the gift of sleep, and need not cultivate the art of sleeping. They can lie down and go to sleep anywhere, and st any time, and under almost any conceivable circumstances. They can sleep when they are sick, and sleep away their sickness; they can sleep when they are in trouble, and forget all their cares. They sleep on a soft bed. or on a hard one; with comfortable pillows under their heads, or without them. They could lie down "in the midst of the sea," or "upon the top of a mast," and sleep —sleep.

And even if they cannot find a place to atretch themselves, they can still sleep, bolt upright, in a chair, in a car, or any ventions. She will be conservative of all where: their heads wagging around, to be sure, but their senses locked up quietly in the arms of sleep—sweet sleep. They can do all this on an empty stomach, and so forget their hunger; and they can do it equally well on a full stomach, and leave nature to take care of its load. Such people may truly be said to possess the gift of sleep. Some persons may call them "sleepy heads;" yet they contrive to get through the world very comfortably; and though they may not be lean and hungry-looking, and may even be inclosed in their own fat, some of them, they are not necessarily heavy and stupid when awake. We chance to know some of this breed of sleeping men and women, who are a match for anybody when awake. But aleep to them is a gift, not an art, nor an acquisition. There is, however, another class of humans—and much the more numerous class too-who are poor sleepers, light sleepers, dainty sleepers; with whom sleep-good, sound, refreshing, continuous sleep-is the exception in their experience; and not the rule. These people need to study the art of sleeping. And first and foremost, they must carefully guard against the use of indigestible food and everything that tends to the derangement of the stomach. Three quarters of all our sleeplessness arises from inquietude of the intestinal canal. A plentiful, but digestible and simple dinner, a light and very plain supper taken hours before bed time, a spunge bath before going to bed, which anybody can have in his own chamber, a well aired bed room, and not over heavy bed clothing, rather light to begin with, with a reserve blanket for after midnight, if needed-are all wise precautions for the light sleeper.

Light and pleasant employments and enjoyments for some hours before retiring are also quite desirable. The diver-sion of the mind from any absorbing, and particularly any discomforting and trou-blesome subject of thought, is also quite necessary, and then, a good fair start to-wards sleep, when the bed is first reached, is very important. Every man, when he gets into bed, should settle himself quietly at once, and then say—"Now I lay me down to sleep," and suit his actions to the words. If he once begins to turn from side to side, it is all over with him. It will be all night with him.

There is more in this getting of a fair start at once, than most people are aware of. It is like getting a good start in a race —the inside of the ring. After all, how-ever, one may be beaten. But the vill be greatly in his favor, if, in addition to previous precautions and preparations, he lays himself down at once

But suppose he wakes out of his first sleep after an hour or two. Why then he must play 'possum and pretend sleep, and insist that he is only half awake a most, and by no means allow himself to be fully roused, if he can possibly avoid it. People go to sleep by sections, and they wake up ordinarily in the same way; and if care is used, the whole man may not be roused, and only a part will have to be quieted again. Yet, after all, the sleep-seeker may miserably fall of his intended rest; for the best device of men draught of water, a quiet rock in an easy chair, a thorough cooling of the person and the bed, and another attempt at sleep. Above all things avoid getting into a fret because of your sleeplessness. Don't think it a very grievous or unusual thing for one to be awake three or four hours on the stretch. It won't kill you. You will soon get used to the thing, or by patient painstaking will partially overcome the restless habit. We know men who are reasonably hale and hearty, though approaching their threescore year and ten, who yet hardly know from their own experience what an uninterrupted night's sleep means, and whole nights are ordinarily broken by hours of waxefulness.

The will has much to do with one's sleep. By training, the mind and body may be taught to obey pretty generally determination of the will, John Wesley learned to go to sleep when he would, and where he would, and to sleep as long as he would. If he had half an hour's leisure, and needed sleep, he would throw himself down and take the required rest. Daniel Webster, if we And though everybody cannot do ex-acily as Wesley and Webster did, they face. The judge says the Harvards were may approximate towards them, by the persistent exercise of the will in controlling mind and body; and even partial success will pay well for the trouble

Whittier on Woman Suffrage. Convention, at Newport, Rhode Island,

on Wednesday:
AMESBURY, 12th, 8mo., 1869, — My
Dear Friend:—I have received my letter, inviting me to attend the convention in behalf of woman's suffrage, at Newport, R. I., on the 25th lnst. I do not see how it is possible for me to accept the invitation, and were it possible for me to do so, ments which the state of my health would prevent me ing the race. from taking such a part in the meeting as would relieve me from the responsibility of seeming to sanction anything in its action which might conflict with my own views of duty or policy. Yet I should do myself great injustice if I did not embrace this occasion to express my general sympathy with the movement. I have seen no good reason why mothers, wives and daughters should not have the same rights of person, property and citizenship which fathers, husbands and brothers have. The sacred memory of mother have. The sacred memory of mother and sister, the wisdom and dignity of the sacred memory of mother who have been accustomed to something the snake.

It fastened its fang in his foreinger, just below the first joint. With great presence of mind he forced it to loosen its hold, killed it, tied a string tightly around his finger above the bite, and teen, after applying some tobacco to it, made his way to town for whisky, of which he drank a pint and a half. He has felt no serious effects from the bite of the snake.

like equality in rights as well as duties will remain. I have no fear that man will be less manly or woman less womanly when they meet on terms of equality before the law.

On the other hand, I do not see that the exercise of the ballot by woman will proves remedy for all the evils of which she justly complains. It is her right as truly as mine, and when she asks for it it is something less than manhood to with-hold it. But, unsupported by a more practical education, higher aims and a deeper sense of the responsibilities of life, it is not likely to prove a blessing in her hands any more than in a man's With great respect and hearty sympa-

The esthetic, the sensuous and the sentimental part of man seldom meet so agreeably as they do over a basket of red peaches, whose cheeks yet seem to burn with the sun they left in Maryland or-chards. The Persians signified love by the gift of half a peach. Let us love ourand mice will sometimes gang awry; and selves many times then, while this amber then there is nothing better to do but to sun of August lasts. The peach is the get up for a walk round the room, a rose of fruits. Unlike love, it is harmless in any of its effects. A man once wished to commit suicide, and, looking about for an easy death, decided to eat himself to death on peaches; but the more he ate the better he felt, till, at the end of his basket, he cried, "Let me not leave the world that contains such a beautiful fruit." An amiable way of partaking of the peach is to slice it, cover it with sugar, and let it remain on ice for an hour, or till it freezes; then pour equal parts of sweet wine and cream over the fruit, eat and realize a vegetable passion A peach club has been formed among some of our gentlemen of refinement who solemnly departed for the sunniest orchards of the Southwest to indulge in their favorite fruit, as anglers do in trout fishing. Only one bite is taken out of the crimson side of a peach. The last account was 1,331 peaches eaten by the best sportsman of the party.

The International Boat Race. A corrected sketch of the race says The Oxfords passed Barnes' bridge only two lengths ahead, the Harvards having made a brilliant spurt before reaching the mistake not, had something of the same bridge, by which they gained about power of going to sleep when he would three quarters of a length. After the race the two crews dined at Mortlake with Mr. Phillips, who invited a large party to meet them. During the dinner, the Oxford men, in speeches, said the race was, if not the hardest, at least The following letter from John G. as hard as any they had ever contested, Whittier was read at the Woman Suffrage and praised the pluck and work of the Harvards.

The Harvards consider that their steering was rather out, making a possible difference of from half a length to a length. Loring was rather unwell, owing to overtraining.
The Harvards are well satisfied with their work and pleased with the arrangements which prevented any difficulty dur-The general opinion is that the race was thoroughly well conducted. Great praise resounds on all sides for each crew.

The great reason why physicians do not cure Consumption is, they iry to do too much they give medicine to stop the cough, to stop chilis, to stop night sweats, hectic fever, and by so doing they derange the whole digestive powers, locking up the secretions, and eventually the patient sinks and dies.

Dr. Schenck, in his treatment, does not try to stop a cough, night sweats, chills or fever. Remove the cause, and they will all stop of their own secord. No one can be cured of Consumption, Liver Complaint, Dytpepsia, Catarrh, Canker, Ulcerated Throat, unless the liver and stomach are made healthy.

If a person has consumption, of course the ungs in some way are diseased, either tubercies, abcesses, bronchair distinct, pleurs adhesion, or the lungs are a mass of inflammation and fast decaying. In such cases what must be done? It is not only the lungs that are wasting, but it is the whole body. The stomach and liver havelost their power to make blood out of fo. d. Now the only chance is to take Dr. Schenck's three medicines, which will bring up a tone to the stomach, the patient will begin to want food, it will digest easily and make good blood; then the patient pegins to grow, the lungs commence to heal up, and the patient gets fishy and well. This is the only way to cure Consumption.
