The Nittsburgh Guzette

How He Fixed Her.

Hotel-keepers usually charge "half-price" for the board of children. When we enter upon the business of a jolly host, our terms for the average of nine-teenth century young America will be not "half-price," but double price. The stowage capacity of a youngster may be limited. His proclivity toward waste knows no bounds. If anything in a hotel comes under the head of a first class nuisance, it is a young gentleman of five years, whose mother supposes him to be an infant Napoleon. We met with such a shaver at a Quaker hotel at Atlantic City. Young Oscar was dramming with a pair of sticks upon the haudsomest walnut balustrade of one of the best kept hotels upon the Island. This didn't suit the notions of the worthy landlord.
"Little boy," said he, in a paternal manner, "if thee wants to drum, thee must do thy drumming outside of the house."
The wayward youngling laughed the lardlord to scorn. Instead of stopping he accelerated the movement of the sticks. The worthy Friend serenely took him by the scruff of the neck and placed him in the back yard. About two minutes afterward the oungster's mother came down the stairs. fairly blazing with ire. She was a gorgeously gotten up widow. She opened a masked battery of invectives against the Quaker host. He endured it with all the mildness that clusteres around a dish of early lamb: "I'll leave this house early lamb: "I'll leave this house alleged marriage and sonship will hardly instantly," was the remark with which arise to the dignity of judicial action, and she wound up her torrent of excited is likely to furnish only fleeting food for

She had no sooner finished this sentence than the tranquil Quaker touched a bell. It brought to his presence a solemn and sely respectable looking African in a painfully white apron and paper collar. "Leonidas," said the landlord, mildly, 4'go up to 42 and bring down this Friend's baggage when she tells thee she is ready for thee. If she wants thee to get a carriage for her, or has any other commands until she is gone, thee will see them atuntil she is gone, thee will see them attended to." The landlord was about to withdraw. The lady by this time had begun to cool off. She may have glanced at the battered balustrade, and possibly an idea struck her that her. Oscar wasn't quite an angel just yet. Certain it was that she didn't expect to leave the house. It was equally certain from her altered manuer that she didn't want to do so. She hauled in her horns to the extent of several inches. She apologized—did everything except ask to be allowed to retain her room. From this humiliation she was spared by the substantial, square-toed honesty of her ost. "My house," said he, "shall never settle with thee. Fare thee well."

he last seen of the lady she was iming unexpected caloric to young Oscar a strip of shingle, while Leonidas was wrestling upon the stairs with two hat boxes and a Saratoga trunk.—Phila. North American.

An Eccentric German.

The will of a rich German nobleman was contested and an attempt made to set it aside by his relations, on the ground that he had left his large fortune to his wife, who was not his equal in life, having been a waiting maid at a country inn, who had merely married him for his money. He was thirty years her senior, it was charged that through her persua-sive manners she had unduly influenced him in the disposition of his property, and in his last sickness had especially worked upon him so as to induce him to overlook his near relations, both brothers and sisters. By the laws in Germany, all persons can testify in their own case, and by an equally good law public sentiment holds ignorance to be a crime, so that all are educated. When this waiting-girl that was, appeared on the witness stand she was not only a most beautiful creature, rut a most intelligent one also. She stood up uncovered before the court and jury, as is the usage there, neither willing nor reluctant to testify. She said, "Al-though it is true that my station in life was far below my dear, departed husband, and the disparity in age great, yet I saw, when he first addressed me, that his in-tentions were honorable and his principles good, and to a liberal and sweet disposition he added a cultivated mind, and in these good qualities I saw his beauty. As to influencing him, she added, in the disposition of his property. added, in the disposition of his property, she had never mentioned the matter to him. In the four years of happiness that they had lived together, money was never mentioned, nor did she ever know that he had made a will. As to his last sickness, she well remembered his last words—and here she stopped. One of the lawyers asked her to state what they were. She modestly replied that she would prefer not to do so.

The opposing counsel, conceiving that. ents, insisted on it, and the judge kindly said that she would by the laws have to do so, as she must tell them all. She then said: "He had been sick for several days, and I was sitting frear him at the window, knittlng, when he beckoned me to come still colser to him." He said: "Fredericks, my dear, kiss me and get the glasses and open that bottle of champagne, for I am about to leave you, and let us take our last farewell;" and sobbing in her handkerchief, she continued, "which we did, and he died." The lack of it. The common grain cradle case was given to the jury without argument, and they returned a verdict for the widow in less than five minutes.

Is there a Lineal Bonaparte Alivet The Imperial Criminal Court of Vienna has received a letter signed "Prince Eugene Joseph Napoleon Bonaparte," and dated Stutgardt, June 28, of the present year. In it the writer claims to be the son of the King of Rome, the sole offspring of the great Napoleon and of Maria Louisa, better known to history as the Duke of Reichstadt. The claimant avers that his mother, a "descendant of an old and noble Hungarian family," was "very secretly married" to the Duke of Reichstadt, by whom she had two children, twins, the writer and a girl, now "the wife of Prince George in Saxony." The writer also claims that as a boy he was raised by a tailor named Ludwig, of Wurzen, Saxony, on whom he was foisted by the act of his mother, whom he says is still living, and of knowledge of whose whereabouts he charges his sis-ter—a knowledge he invokes the courts to enjoin her to divulge, as also he wishes to have an order for the examination of his birth and baptismal certificate to be entered up. This is the case as made out circumstantially. Of course, only inquiry can demonstrate it to be the truth, or explode it as a fallacy. Against the probable truthfulness of the tale, however, exist the facts that the personation of princes has been the dodge of ingenious impostors for centuries, the absence of any rumor even hitherto that the Duke of Reichstadt, who died at twenty-three, of consumption, ever married, and the current impression, fortified by all kinds of sub-historical narration, that the young man was an imbecile in a double sense. A Paris letter reports that Mr. Lucas. the lion-tamer, has had a very narrow escape of being eaten by his lions at the Hippodrome in that city. He went into the cage where there were two lions and two lionesses with only a whip in his hand, instead of the heavy cudgel which he generally carries. A lioness, presuming upon his being unarmed, sprung at him and seized him by the nape of the neck. A cry of horror arose from the spectators. Many women fainted, and others rushed out of the theatre. The other lions, attracted by blood, rushed upon Lucas, and bit and scratched him severely. In a few mements he would certainly have been killed had not one of his assistants, who was not in the habit of entering the cage, come forward and knocked the lion about the head with an iron bar. It is reported Lucas said to him, that may be, the man dragged Lucas away from the lions. He is now lying at his mother-in-law's house, No. 31 Avenue Montague, in a most precarious state. The doctors have discovered no less than thirty-one wounds. It is feared that even if he should recover he will be a cripple for life. The heroism of the man by whom he was rescued is the theme of enthusiastic praises. M. Arnaud, the manager of the Hippodrome, had the presence of mind to close the door of the cage when the faithful servant got Mr. Lucas out of it, otherwise the lion might have made a raid upon the audience.

The Frozen Well of Brandon.

Brandon, Vermont, contains a very singular natural curiosity in the shape of "Go away, leave me to die alone." How-that may be, the man dragged Lucas singular natural curiosity in the shape of a frozen well. In the fall of 1859, Mr. Andrew Trembly dug a well upon the sloping ground west of the railroad and about a quarter of a mile from the station. After penetrating the earth fifteen feet, he came to frozen earth, and dug through this twenty-three feet before finding water. The well is forty one feet deep, with three feet depth of water. The well is stoned up. Near the water the stones are incrusted with ice, and the water has an icy coldness which it retains some time after being drawn. We saw the ice upon the walls of the well by the aid of a glass. As the weather grows cold the water of the well congeals, and about the latter part of November they are unable to obtain water. The water continues sealed until April. Formerly they had a boy who descended the well and broke the ice, and thus enabled the These went through a similar stratum of frozen earth, but contain more water. A well sunk about six rods to the south encountered no frozen earth.

Harvesting Buckwheat, Buckwheat is the most peculiar of the grain family in the manner of its ripening —a considerable portion being in the milk state when another will be fully matured The pont is to cut it in that stage which will save the most, and this is when about half of the grain has turned brown. If the straw were less sensative to cold than it is, harvesting might be delayed longer, but when stricken by frost the growth is entirely arrested and the straw disposed to an early decay, preventing any farther maturing of the grain. But cut when a portion is in the milk and set up in bunches in the field, the juice of lack of it. The common grain cradle vesting this grain, as it leaves the straw bunches for setting up for drying. TRADE ASSOCIATIONS. - It is announced that the introduction of liberal institutions in Austria has given rise to an important movement among the working men, with the object of improving the relations between them and their employers. This movement is not confined to the great industrial establishments, but has spread even to the smallest trades, such as comb makers, sweeps, waiters, and other occupations. The question of trade associations in Austria is at present in a state of transition. Trade unions are forbidden by the present laws, but the new Constitution contains provisions which nullify this prohibition. The question was brought forward at the last session of the Reichsrath, but no decision in a condition to be easily gathered in

SCHENCE'S PULMONEC

MANDRAKE PILLS will care Consumption.
Liver Complaint and Dyspepsis, if taken according to directions. They are all three to be taken, at the same time. They cleanse the stomach, relax the same time. They cleanse the stomach, relax the livor and put it it work; then the appetite becomes good; the food digests and makes good blood; the patient begins to grow in fiesh; the diseased matter ripens into the lungs, and the patient outgrows the disease and gets well. This is the only way to cure consumption.

To these three medicines Dr. J. H. Schenck, of Philodelphia, owes his anrivated success in the treatment of pulmonary Consumption. The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter in the inngs, nature throws it off by an easy expectoration, for when the philearm or matter is ripe a slight cough will throw it off, and the patient has reat and the lungs begin to heal.

T. do this, the Easwed Tonic and Mandrake Pills must be irrely used to cleanse the stomach and iver, so that the Pulmonic Syrup and the food will make good blood.

Schenck's Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, removing all obstructions, relax the ducts of the gall bladder, the bile starts freely, and the liver gall bladder, the bile starts freely, and the liver gall bladder, the bile starts freely, and the liver and liver, so that the Pulmonic Syrup and the food will make good blood.

Schenck's Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, removing all obstructions, relax the dust's of the gall bladder, the bile starts fr-ely, and the liver is soon relievod; the stools will show what the Pills can do; nothing has ever been invented except calome (is deadly po'son w.ich is very dangerous to use unless with great care,) that will unlock the gall bladder and start the secretions of the liver like Schenck's Mandrake Pills.

Liver Compisint is one of the most prominent causes of Consumptions.

Schenck's Reawed Tonic is a gentle stimulant and alterative, and the alkali in the Seaweed, which this preparation is made of, assists the stomach to throw bout the gastric juice to dissolve the food with the Pulmonic Syrup, and it is made into good blood without fermentation or souring in the stomach.

The great reason why physicians do not core Consumption is, they jry to do too much; they give medicine to stop the cough, to stop chills, to stop pills weats, hectic fever, and by so doing they derange the whole digestive powers, locking up the secretions, and eventually the patient sints and dies.

Dr. Schenck, in his treatment, does not try to stop a cough, night sweats, chills er fever. Bemove the cause, and they will all stop of their own accord. No one can be cured of Consumption, Liver Complaint, Dyreppsis, Catarrh, Canker, Ulcersted Throat, unless the liver and stomach are made healthy.

If a person has consumption, of course the ungs in some way are diseased, either tubercles, abcesses, bronchial irritation, pleura acheeion, or the lungs are a mass of inflammation and fast decaying. In such cases what must be done? It is not only the lungs that are wasting, but it is the whole body. The stomach and liver havelost their power to make blood out of fo.d. Now the only chance is to take Dr. Schenck's three medicines, which will bring up a tene to the stomach, the patient well begin to want food, it will digest easily and make good blood; then A. A. the Pulmonic Syrup. Take the Manorake Pilis freely in all billious complaints, as they are Derfectly harmless.

Dr. Schenck, who has enjoyed uninterrapted health for many years past, and now weighs 335 pounds, was wasted away to a mere skeleton, in the very last stage of Pulmonary Consumption, his physicians having pronounced his case hopeless and abandoned him to his fate. He was cured by the aforesaid mer kinnes, and since his recovery many thousands similarly afflicted have used Dr. techenck's preparation with the same remarkable success. Full directions accompany each, making it not absolutely necessary to personality see Dr. Schenck, unless patients wish their lungs examined, and for this purpose he is prefession ally at his Principal Office, Philadelphia, every laturday, where all letters for advice must be addressed. He is also professionally at No. 33 Bond street. New York, every other Tuesday, and at No. 35 Hanover street, Boston, every other Wednesday. He gives advice free, but for a thorough examination with his Respirometer the price is 35. Once hours at each city from 9 A. M. to 3 F. M.
