> OLD POEM. Down by the breaking waves we stood.

Upon the rocky shore; The brave waves whispered courage, And hid wi h friendly roa: The faitering words that told the tale I dared not tell before.

I asked if with the precious gift. Her love, my life she do less? Wasith the voice, or some fair wave-For, south, I scarce may guess-Some gentie wave or her sweet voice, That lisped so sweetly "Yes."

And then, in happy silence, too, I c a ped her fair wee hand: And iong wast to there, carelessly, While o'er the dark bing land The sho set and the fishing boats Were sailing from the strand.

It seems not many days.sgo-Like ye.terday - no more, Since thus we stocd, my love and I, Up ... the r cky shore! But I was four-and-twenty then. And now 1'm forty-four.

The illy hand is thinner now, And in her sunny hair I see some slivery heas, and on Her brow some dates of cate: But, winkled brow, or silver locks, She's notone wh.tless fair.

The fishing boats a core of years Go s dling from the strat d. The crimison sun a score of years Bets o'er the darkening san: And mereto-nizkt upou the cliff We are standing bat d in hand.
