It was to demonstrate the necessity for concession, was it, that journals like the Chicago Tribune and N. Y. Post, with which the Times is in hearity accord, cut themselves squarely free from Republicanism, and agreed to support free trade candidates against our own tariff nominees?

It is clear then that these Tooley street conspirators have discovered that their famous petard, which was to blow up the ican party, is only a huge mare's nest, a hollow and innocent pumpkin which everybody laughs at. The victius of lacompetents.

The origin of the fearful calamity which recently occurred in Righmond is a question of public importance everywhere. There is no better illustration of the necessity for the thorough and scientific instruction of our young mechanics and artisans than what the people so frequently read of concerning the falling of houses and the consequent destruction of life and limb. We have had accounts of two such accidents since the dreadful occurrence in Richmond. But it is only when some disaster occurs that destroys scores or hundreds of lives that the public mind is so strongly aroused as to take effective means to guard against the recurrence of such terrible tragedies. The construction of a building that can by any possibility be made use of for the congregation of large numbers of people, is an important matter that should always be placed in unquestionably competent bands. As a general rule, such men are chosen; too often, however, they are not. But it very frequently hannens in the course. Manufacture, highly VITRIFIED WATER AND SEWER PIPE. always a fatal mistake, for if there is any discrimination to be made, there should more care in the selection of the directing head, where alterations are to be made in a large building, than if it were to be an entirely new structure. But the safe rule is to employ only the best men in all cases where large numbers of persons may be placed in peril, whether the proposed building is either entirely new or only an altered one. It is quite too common to take serious risks to save material, work manship and cost. Such buildings should always be subjected to the tests, and constructed upon the principle applied to railway bridges of first class goads—that is the maximum load which by any possibility can be placed upon them, whether of freight, or merchandize in store, or the more precious burden of human beings
