WHAT MUST BE WORN. SUMMER MANTLES Short paletots and long casaqblack gros grain are the accepted wrappings of the season. The Metternich mantle has fallen into disfavor, as it is he addressed the graceful lines written while she was in England, and he in hi nissionary work in India, and beginning upper sair mass occupied with a very loops half way down the seams. Square tunic skirts are made of four straight widths of three quarter goods shaped longer toward the back, left planky open in front, simply trimmed all around, and draped in the way just described. Apron fronts are now made of a straight width of three quarter goods and a single side gore rounded up to the belt. The front width is not sloped in the least, is scan tily gathered to the belt, extending far back on the sides, while the narrow side gore is very full at the belt. The long back widths are then sewed to the sides; where the only drapery is made by gath ering up the side seam from three fingers below to a very small space just beneath the belt. This makes the apron it smoothly and that over the stounch, and gives the increased size necessary on the Ladies who prefer trained skirts for the tootse have their suits made with a single skirt and cassque, and always change their costame upon coming from the street; but those who make the same suit answer for both house and street, prefer two skirts and a paletot, as the single skirt would look too plain for indoor wear when the cassque is removed. HOW TO MAKE THEM.
