Says the Post:

As the delegate election approaches the candidates for the various offices are redubling their efforts to secure the prizes so covetously sought. We would caution the people to look out for those whose former actions have gained them an almost criminal notoriety. Trust no man again with your confidence who has once violated it, and betrayed every interest committed to him. The legislative ticket should particularly be looked after. We want no more such disgraceful scenes as distinguished the last session of the Logislature. Some of those who were prominent in every work of corruption last winter are again seeking the opportunity to practice their nefarious business, while others of them are striving to obtain postitions where the opportunitive for plander are greater than those formerly enjoyed. These men should be incontinently spursed by every man who desires an honest and capable administration of public affairs. They are too well known to require mention. See that such fellows receive that condemnation their acts so justly merit.
