re, believing that the insight into the ovement which it affords, should be enjoyed by all the voters in the county:

As we suspected would be the case, the all commercial failed yesterday to give the names of the signers to its call for a convention for the formation of a third party. The understood reason for this is, that it has few or no names, and fears to publish it what it has, lest the weakness of its movement should become apparent. This fact a being settled, it only remains for us to expose the corruption and villainy involved in this movement, as it properly deserves. The movement is based on the pretense that it is necessary to secure purity in the Republican party. It proposes to secure this by forestalling, not only the regular convention of the party, but cen the primary meetings, at which the delegates to ethe convention of the party, but cen the primary meetings, at which the delegates to ethe convention are, elected! Thus, under pretense of securing purity, it really takes, so far as it has power, the entire homination from the regular convention. oyed by all the voters in the county:

If such be the expectation of any person, I can tell him beforehand, that he is doomed to disappointment. Already the arent-couriers prove the character of the material that is to follow and give unto us a new Moses to lead us in the exodus from "corruptions, rings," and all unholy alliances, to the land of promise, "the land of the hereafter," the Kingdom of Rightcoursess where rings are not.

And upon whom has this blessed lot fallen; who are the men to be thus honored over, all of their countrymen; who are they who go before, preaching the new gowel of commy, reform and hatred to all rings, ring insisters, and fishing parties!

Excuse me, Messra Editors and patient reader, for destroying this happy illusion; look for no great name; expect no brilliant meteoric one; for the poet hath said "Great tackes from little toe corns grow," and might not something grand grow out from the comment of the last economy and reform league last, himself a disappointed office seeker, a bull-r headed bit of obstinacy, without brains enough to keep him from butting against enough to keep him from butting against overphody with whom he comes in contact who is eternally yelping out "Ring", "Ring!!!" and, I almost. for got it, on account of its close proximity to the tait, the Pittsburgh Commercial, without brains the contact who is eternally yelping out "Ring", "Ring!!" and, I almost. for got it, on account of its close proximity the property of the last varieties of the last the Pittsburgh Commercial, with the property of the last varieties of the last.
