court, writing with account on her death bed, was too painful for friendly eyes.

An English paper gives a list of the London theatres and the numbers they are capable of containing. The list includes thirty-seven houses, whose united auditoriums can accommodate 71,230 persons. The largest is an East End Theater, called the Standard, which claims to hold an audience of 4500; next comes the historical Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, with 400; next another popular East End house, the Britannia, with 3,923, and so on. The same journal points out that taking into consideration the fact that St. Paul's Cathedral alone will hold 54,000 englet. London is not overstocked with the fatres in proportion to the churches.

A New Zeal-ND letter says: The trouble with the fatres are proportion to the churches.

A New Zeal-ND letter says: The trouble with the fatres is generally disappiearing: a dispatch dated Wanganui, June 1st, says: A general meeting is to be held at Parihaka, on the 18th of September, by Te Whiti and Toha. Messengers have been sent to all parts of the Island. The object of the meeting is to re-establish general peace. Te Whiti says that Taranaki commenced the war, and Taranaki must end it. The Maori King is at present a guest of Mrs. Charlton, at Kawhia. It is Tawhino's intention to throw open both Aotea and Kawhia, which shows that the natives intend to be more friendly with the Europeans than they have been for some time past in that part of the Island.

unive neen for some time past in that part of the Island.

A centous sequestration case has just been tried at thutaness, France. In the middle of Normandy, in a pretty village, lived a family, patriardhal in its manners, consisting of a farmer and four sons, hard working people, highly esteemed in the country. One of the ysons, however, for some reason not defined, became melancholy and no longer fabored as usual. The father took his soni flung him into a dark room, a "Styrian cave forlorm," and chained him to the wall. This happened forty years ago. The neighbors were well aware of what had occurred, but no one said a word. Fifteen years later the father took with the word word, is attended the funeral and the curate expatiated, on the qualities of the defunct. The sons inherited the farm, and continued to keep their brother in chains until he was an old man incapable of flight. GEO. C. McLRAN, tashier, PITTSBUTIGH, July 2d, 1870.
