

Declaration of War Announced in the German Parliament and French Chambers—Loan of Twelve Million Thalers Voted—Sitting Speech by King William—Napoleon Responsible for the War, Without Which Peace of Europe Could Not Be Preserved—The Ultimatum of Germany the Detachment of Bonaparte—Honors of the Commencement of Hostilities—Great Commercial Depression in England—Consolidation of a Few Days Since War Began—American Sanitary Organization in Paris—War-Enthusiasm Unabated.

The German Parliament. The Reichstag met at 10 o'clock this morning. The Emperor's speech was read, and the King's speech followed. The Emperor's speech was a declaration of war against France, and the King's speech was a declaration of support for the Emperor's action.

The French Chambers. The Chamber of Deputies met at 10 o'clock this morning. The President's speech was read, and the Chamber's response followed. The Chamber's response was a declaration of support for the Emperor's action, and a vote of 12 million thalers for the loan.

The King's Speech. King William of Prussia delivered a speech to the Reichstag, in which he declared that the war was necessary for the preservation of the European peace, and that the Emperor was responsible for the outbreak of hostilities.

The Emperor's Speech. Emperor Napoleon III delivered a speech to the Chamber of Deputies, in which he declared that the war was necessary for the preservation of the European peace, and that the Emperor was responsible for the outbreak of hostilities.

The Ultimatum. The German Government presented an ultimatum to the French Government, demanding that France should evacuate its troops from Belgium and Luxembourg, and that France should remain neutral in the conflict.

The Loan. The German Government announced that it had secured a loan of 12 million thalers from the Reichstag, to be used for the war effort.

The American Sanitary Organization. The American Sanitary Commission has organized a large force of volunteers to assist in the care of the wounded soldiers in the field.

The Daily Gazette

ESTABLISHED IN 1786. PITTSBURGH, THURSDAY, JULY 21, 1870. VOL. LXXXV—NO. 157.

THE CAPITAL.

The New French Ministry. The President of the Republic has appointed a new ministry, headed by the late Minister of Foreign Affairs, M. Drouyn de Lhuys.

The Press on the Situation. The press in Paris is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The French Army. The French army has been reorganized, and is now in a state of readiness for the campaign.

The German Army. The German army has been reorganized, and is now in a state of readiness for the campaign.

The Italian Army. The Italian army has been reorganized, and is now in a state of readiness for the campaign.

The Spanish Army. The Spanish army has been reorganized, and is now in a state of readiness for the campaign.

The Austrian Army. The Austrian army has been reorganized, and is now in a state of readiness for the campaign.

The Prussian Army. The Prussian army has been reorganized, and is now in a state of readiness for the campaign.

THE PRESS ON THE SITUATION.

The press in Paris is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in London is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Berlin is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Vienna is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Madrid is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in St. Petersburg is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Constantinople is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Mexico is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

THE PRESS ON THE SITUATION.

The press in Paris is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in London is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Berlin is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Vienna is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Madrid is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in St. Petersburg is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Constantinople is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Mexico is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

THE PRESS ON THE SITUATION.

The press in Paris is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in London is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Berlin is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Vienna is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Madrid is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in St. Petersburg is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Constantinople is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Mexico is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

THE PRESS ON THE SITUATION.

The press in Paris is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in London is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Berlin is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Vienna is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Madrid is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in St. Petersburg is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Constantinople is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Mexico is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

THE PRESS ON THE SITUATION.

The press in Paris is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in London is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Berlin is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Vienna is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Madrid is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in St. Petersburg is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Constantinople is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.

The press in Mexico is generally favorable to the Emperor's action, and is confident that the French army will achieve a decisive victory.