Agriculture-- Its Position and Claims.

Agriculture is as old as man, and twice as honest; it is the parent of the to order at the shortest notice and on the nrts, and has never given its children stones for eggs; it has fed and clothed evbuman race, from Adam downwards; and short of its promises, and never has be- trial. trayed its trust. The fine arts, painting, sclupture and architecture, have had their dawn, their day millennial glory, and their decline, but agriculture has grown strong and old, amid their vicissitudes; many of the useful and ornamental arts have been lost, but the carth has never forgotten to bring forth corn. Amid all the ravages of time and the wrecks of empires, the convulsions of the physical world and the turmoils in the political, the earth has yielded up her treasures with no niggard hand, with no sullen look, and what is better than all, it is more active, more vigorous, more capable to-day than ever before. In politics and morals, in literature and the arts, in our estimate of what is best and wisest in life, we are apt to point back to the 'good old times; but agriculture has seen no better time than now. Hesiod and Virgil inculcated no better precepts than Coleman and the golden age to return, and no shadow patronage. of fear for all the future. As far as any relation exists between the past and present, we can safely say, that the present has only gained. There was never before so good a plow upon earth as at present. Herculaneam and Carriages trimmed to order. $500 CHALLENGE, Whatever concerns the happiness and health of a people is at all times of the most valuable importance. I take it for granted that every person will do all in their power, to save the lives of their children, and that every person will endeavor to promote their own health at all sacrifices. I feel it to be my duty to solmenly assure you that worms, according to the opinion of the most celebrated Physicians, are the primary causes of a large majorn; of diseases to which children and adults are liable: if you have an appetite continually chargeable from one in the Stomach, Picking at the Nose, Hard-A line to Port Jervis, leaving ness and Fullness of the Belley, Dry Cough, at 7 o'clock A.
