Fall Planting of Totatoes.

A gentleman writes in the Maine Farmer: "I left, last fall some potatoes in the ground-in July they were more than as big again as my others." He strongly recommends to farmers to plant some in the fall and try the experiment. I have seen some that others have raised, he says. by plauting in the fall, and they were excellent-better potatoes than he ever saw hefore-very large, sound and handsome. We have no doubt of the truth of this statement. Potatoes planted in the fall, however, should be put in deep imbeded in abundance of good horse manure, and a ridge of soil raised upon each row. In early spring, this ridge should be removed, and the plants will soon make their appearance some two or three weeks -Ed Tel.
