

Agricultural.

Why don't he do it?

When the farmer knows that a gate is better, and as a time and labor saving fixture cheaper than a set of bars and posts, and without calling upon a carpenter he can himself make one, Why don't he do it?

When he has no other fastening to ligates and barn doors than a stone rolled against them, and in a single evening after supper is able to make a better one, Why don't he do it?

Or when he sees the boards dropping from his barn and out buildings, and like heaps of rubbish lying in piles about his premises and only need nailing on again, Why don't he do it?

Or if he is afraid of the expense of nails, and is always crying up the maxim of Dr. Franklin, 'save the pence and the pounds will take care of themselves,' and he knows the same Dr. Franklin also said 'many men are penny wise and pound foolish,' and he is not careful to think of the pence contained in the latter, Why don't he do it?

If it is the saving of nearly half the manure of a farmer's stock by keeping them shut up in yards, instead of running at large through most part of the winter, Why don't he do it?

If he knows that many of his fields would be greatly improved by ditching, and by the removal of stumps and stones, Why don't he do it?

And when he knows that his pastures would yield double the feed, and of a better quality if the bushes were all cut, Why don't he do it?

And if he can add fifty per cent, to the product of his clover fields, and even to his pastures, by the use of gypsum, Why don't he do it?

If a farmer of fifty acres has (as he should have) use for a good corn sheller and one of the many improved fanning mills, and he has not already obtained both, Why don't he do it?

Gas Tar in Horticulture.

A discovery, which is likely to be of great advantage to agriculture, has just been reported to the Agricultural Society at Clermont (Ohio). A gardener whose frames and hot-houses required painting, decided on making them black, as likely to attract the heat better, and from a principle of economy he made use of gas tar instead of black paint. The work was performed during the winter, and on the approach of spring the gardener was surprised to find that all the spiders and insects which usually infested his hot-house had disappeared, and also that a vine which for the last two years had so fallen off that he had intended to replace it by another, had acquired fresh vigor, and gave every sign of producing a large crop of grapes. He afterwards used the same substance to the posts and trellis-works which supported the trees in the open air, and met with the same result, all the caterpillars and other insects completely disappearing. It is said that similar experiments have been made in some of the vineyards of the Gironde with similar results.—Galignani's Messenger.

To Make Hens lay Perpetually.

We find the following in an English paper, and transfer it to our pages without vouching for its correctness, leaving such of our readers as choose, to try the experiment.

Keep no roosters: give the hens fresh meat, chopped up like sausage-meat, once a day—a very small portion, say half an ounce a day to each hen—in winter, or from the time insects disappear in the fall till they appear again in the spring. Never allow any eggs to remain in the nest for what are called nest-eggs. When the roosters do not run with the hens, and no nest-eggs are left in the nest, the hen will not cease laying after the production of twelve or fifteen eggs, as they always do when roosters and nest eggs are allowed, but continue laying perpetually.—

If the above plan were generally adopted, eggs would be as plentiful in the winter as in summer. One reason why hens do not lay in winter as freely as in summer is the want of animal food which they get in summer in abundance in the form of insects.
