

Bring up your Girls Aright.

"I'll take your paper, Mr. D..." said a wealthy gentleman to us the other day, one who cared nothing about reading, but only about money-making. "I'll take your paper, if you will say or do anything in it which shall make our girls work, instead of flitting about the streets, and spending money, the first red cent of which they never earned too." We could not promise him any such thing, and so we lost, or did not gain, a subscriber. Now that man has a family of girls, and he complains madly that they are good for nothing but to spend his money. They would scorn to help their mother sew, knit or do house work; not they! they are too much ladies for that! They can thump the piano a little; they can bedeck themselves in silks and jewels; they can saunter the streets and stores to show their new fashions and pretty bonnets; they can wait in the dancing hall and drive with the fast young blades the town around; and this is all they can do. No wonder the fathers of such promising young ladies should call on the printer for help, and promise to patronize him to the amount of some shillings per year, if he will perform a duty which was never performed for them at home, and the non-fulfillment of which by their parents is now bringing upon their heads that punishment in the shape of ehagrin and mortification, which they so richly deserve. No, we tell that man, the newspapers can hardly reach his case. The evil lies in the sanctuary of his own mansion. Because he is rich, he has brought up his daughters to despise work and working people. The consequence is, they are fit for nobody. Their intellectual education has been enforced by quite loose lessons. In educated society they cannot sustain themselves; for the kitchen they are not qualified; and if they do not have the good luck to marry men whose fortunes can support them in idleness and luxury, they may find their level in a worse place than we would mention. Teach your daughters to work as soon as their young fingers and hands can help a mother's toils. Keep them steadily employed in some useful service and their health will be sounder, their intellects brighter, their morals purer, their characters better, and they will appear wherever they are, ornamented by a more than golden jewelry, which nothing earthly gives, or can destroy. Some girls in the plainest attire, look vastly better and are infinitely more thought of and respected than others of nobler ancestry who carry silks and satins enough upon their persons to load a barouche; and why? because of the ornaments of cultivated minds and accomplished manners. These, after all, are the true glory of woman, the presence of which is worth more than rubies, and the absence of which nothing can supply.

Covet not your Neighbor's Goods.

The New York Tribune thus sensibly answers a correspondent who has been swindled by one of the many traps set to catch the green and gullible portion of the sovereigns: WE CAN'T HELP IT.—Mr. Thomas Potter, Glen's Falls, N. Y., wants our help to expose and punish somebody who has been doing him and many others out of $2 each, being their subscription to The Whole World, which was to have been, and perhaps for a time was, issued in this city by 'J. Woodman Hart, World Hall, Broadway, N. Y.' Said Hart advertised that he would distribute among his first three hundred thousand subscribers $300,000 worth of 'Gifts,' commencing with 'Prof. Hart's Elegant Country Seat, $25,000;' 'A magnificent City Residence, $17,000,' and so on. Of course, these 'Gifts' are not forthcoming, nor the newspaper either; whence we conclude that the Professor has retired to his 'Elegant Country Seat,' to concoct some fresher scheme for swindling the greenhorns wherewith the country overflows. Or perhaps he has started on those 'Extended Travels in the Old and New World,' of which we note that he proposes to distribute One Hundred Thousand Copies among his geese—when he gets his flock made up. Mr. Potter must not ask us to hunt up 'Professor Hart.' He may be Aix-la-Chapelle, or Benares, or examining the crater of Kilauoe, or looking down from the peaks of the Himalayas, for aught we can guess. Wherever he is, we have no doubt that he has a pocket full of cash and is having a good time. Such men will never lack a dollar while the world rejoices in the possession of a fool. And we really can't pity those that run into his gambling trap very much. If they had not coveted money which they had never earned, they would never have run into his snare. Men who pay over their cash to agents or publishers of whom they know nothing, and whom nobody knows as responsible, cannot expect to have much left.

A Kiss in Fee.

A young German girl was acquitted on a charge of larceny last week, in the Court of Quarter Sessions, Phila. Upon the verdict of acquittal being rendered by the jury, she manifested her joy and her gratitude in a manner which very much astonished her counsel, the Court and the bar. With tears of joyful happiness bursting from her sparkling eyes, she embraced her counsel, and imprinted upon his glowing cheek a kiss which resounded throughout the Court room, like the melody of sweet music. Her counsel a young gentleman of fine personal appearance, though taken by surprise, received this tender acknowledgment of his valuable services from his fair client as a legal tender. The girl left the scene of her triumph, unconscious of the gaze and the smiles of a crowded Court room, and only grateful to her counsel for her deliverance from a charge which had threatened, but a moment before, like a dark cloud to burst upon her head and darken her future life with the perpetual blackness of despair and degradation.

Tar a Remedy for Horse Distemper.

Thomas W. Ladd, of Smithfield, Jefferson county, Ohio, writes to the Ohio Farmer that he has found a remedy and cure for 'distemper' in horses. He says: "Having three sick with this disease, an experienced farmer told me to use tar, and he thought that the sick colts would soon recover, and that those who had not taken the disease would not have it at all, or but lightly. I followed his direction to my entire satisfaction. I gave the colts morning and evening, as much as I could readily get into their mouths with a paddle. After a few applications, the sick ones commenced running at the nose, their appetites returned, and in a short time they had entirely regained what they had lost from disease. The others never took it to my knowledge. Some prefer mixed fish-oil with the tar, but I used it alone, and I believe it to be entirely sufficient, if the article be good, pure tar.—I would have no faith at all in the coal tar, now in use in some places."

TO PRESERVE DEAD GAME.—Take out the intestines and fill the inside with unground wheat, and place the fowl in a heap or cask of the same grain in such a manner as to insure its being completely covered. In this way fowls will be preserved perfectly sweet for months. The feathers should be removed.
