Population of the Glebe.

Until the millenial period, when the nature of the carth shall all become as one, of the globe, there can be no possibility time, and alleged that the child had the bowels which paral- did. It is visited daily by a regiment of year's course of steady devotion to the Cure of learning accurately the number of hu man beings in existence at any particular time. The population of the earth gusted with it. The little sufferer was lyhas and always must be a matter of con. ing in one corner, in a wretched and de- magic balsam on the inflamed and irrita- tlesnakes. There is hardly a road so of Medical Inhalation—has enabled we to jecture. But the well reasoned conjectis entitled to almost as much faith as many statistical documents; for in these lat. starvation. The father not only stated ing that the medicine is genuine. yet appeared on this interesting subject. trial.

After some detailed estimates in regard to the five great divisions of the world, he arrives at the conclusion that its present population is about twelve hundred and eighty three millions. He esti mates the population of Europe at 272 000,000, although the geographies only made it about 258,000,000. But he gives reasons that appear to be sound, for his increased figures. According to a cal culation made in 1787, by order of Louis XVI. of France, the population of Europe was about 150,000,000, and in 1805 it was e-timated at a little under 200,000. 000. Since the latter date, if Herr Dietrich's calculation is correct, the population of Europe has increased at an average rate of con-iderable more than a million a year.

In reference to Asia, there are tolerably reliable data for China, India and the Islands of the Indian Archipelago. For Arabia and other countries, it is necessacontinent, North and South, Herr Dietrich allows 200,000,000, which is quite liberal and generally above most esti- 93c, for Jersey Yellow. the Prussian statistics; for except in some Beef-the sales are 277 bbls. at 11 50a sult. 000,000 inhabitants. This is such a through it. vast number, that its comprehension is almost impossible. Imagine the popula- tion of sale, the other half six months tion of three thousand cities as large as thereafter with interest. Philadelphia, and we may form some idea of the mu'titude.

Think if, po-sible, of the morality amon: this great homan family. The average number of deaths per annum, in certain places where records are hept, is about one to every forty inhabitants. Suppos ing that the earth bas, as Herr Dietrich estimates, 1,283,000,000 inhalitants at the present time, the number of deathin a year would be about 32,000,000 which is more than the entire present pop ulation of the United States. At this rate the average number of deaths per day is about 87,671; the average per hour about 3,653; the average per min ute about 61! Thus at least every second s human life is ended. As the births considerably exceed the death, there are probably seventy or eighty human beingborn per minute. - These continual chan ges make no sensible impression on the surface of a society so divided and so dispersed. But this coming down to minutiæ, in estimate of birth and death, cannot fail to present an awful picture to a contemplative mind.

The Way they Punish Criminals in Texas --- Horse Thieves Hung in Golaid.

We learn from a private letter to gentlewan in this city, that the people of Goliad have found it necessary to put to death a portion of a gang of horse thieves A letter written by one gang was found, and this led to their discovery. On the 15th inst., the arrests of several was attempted, but two refused to be taken, and attempted to escape by fighting their way. These were instantly killed. Five others were taken and lodged in jail. An invertigation was made of the charges against them, and it resulted in convicting two of the most horrid crimes. By daylight on the 17th inst., they were seen hanging to a limb of a live-oak tree in the public square at Goliad, a few feet from the Court House door. The other three were liberated. There are still other horse thieves. The whole county of Goliad is represented to be in arms, and spies are kept on the look-out day and night. The different fords on the San Antonio river are guarded nightly. On the night of the 19th July, news came to Goliad that two of the horse thief advance. gang had been seen some fifteen miles from town. A company immediately left goliad in bot pursuit to take them dead or alive, and, if necessary, to pur. tions. sue them to the Rio Grande. It had not been heard from when the mal left Goliad for Austin .- Austin Gazette, July 31.
