Effects of a Lottery Prize.

A New Orleans letter in the Charleston Courier relates an incident which illustrates in a striking manner the evil that may be produced by one lottery ticket. A young man of good family, in New Orleans, who is passionately fond of gambling, was playing cards with considerable ill luck, and as a last throw, having lost all his money, staked a lottery ticket. He lost. After the game was over, the winner, having no faith in lotteries, proposed to throw dice for it, at twenty five cents a chance. A bystander "a poor fellow who never owned a hundred dollars in his life," accepted the offer, and won the the ticket. A few days afterwards the Havana steamer arrived, and lol the ticket had drawn $25,000. The original owner, who had thus thrown away a fortune, on hearing the news, was taken with an attack of brain fever, and is even now in a sad condition; it is feared he will remain an idot. Endurance of Hunger and Thirst.

The Independent, of Behanm, Texas, gives an account of a horse, which havng escaped from its owner, was found seven weeks afterwards in a thicket about a mile and a half from the house. When he escaped he carried off with him a length of twenty fire feet of rope which, dragging on the ground, bad caught in a bush and kept him securely fastened all that time. Infortunately the rope had so caught that he had only twelve feet of PROTECTED tether to play upon. During his bondage he had, of course, cleared a circle around him, and in addition to the grass within his reach he had bitten off two elusaplings four inches in diameter, and eaten the stumps to the very ground, and also the trunks and limbs so far as his lariat would reach. No rain bad fallen during the period to wet the ground, and in the last four weeks it had not even sprinkled. The horse was an "American' horse, of good size, and fat when he es caped-when found he was a perfect skeleton. Great caution was observed in giving him water and food after be wafound, and he rapidly recovered his flesh, and at last accounts was doing well.

High Price of Farming Land in England. We notice in the late English papers a report of the sale by auction of a portion of the Westbury and Henbury estates of the late Hon. W. M Noel .--These estates are within three miles of the port of Bristol, in the west of England, and the prices realized are said to have been the highest known for many years. With the exception of three lots, the land offered was all sold. The Westbury land, 22 acres, brought $530 an aere; the Henbury land, 40 acres, $415 an acre; and some lands near Thornbury $300 an acre.
