

The Jeffersonian.

THURSDAY, MARCH 15, 1860.

FOR GOVERNOR Hon. Andrew G. Curtin, OF CENTER COUNTY.

Republican National Convention. Change of the Time of Meeting—The 16th of May appointed.

ALBANY, Feb. 28.—The Republican National Committee has changed the day for the meeting of the National Convention at Chicago, to the 16th of May.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEE.—ALBANY, Feb. 28, 1860.—The question of the propriety of changing the time of holding the Republican National Convention has been submitted to the members of the R. publican National Committee, and their views having been communicated by letter, it is determined, in accordance with the wishes of a majority thereof, that the said Convention be held on Wednesday the 16th of May next.

EDWIN D. MORGAN, Chairman, WM M. CHASE, Secretary.

Three Guns for New Hampshire!!! The Campaign ball has fairly opened, and New Hampshire leads off in glorious style. The weather though unpleasant, was not sufficiently so, to keep the hardy sons of old New Hampshire, from the polls. They have re-elected Ichabod Goodwin Governor, and secured a vast majority, in the Legislature. Though the Republican majority is not yet ascertained, yet the returns indicate a gain upon last year. Good enough for one day.

The Rev. J. E. Miller proposes giving a Concert at the Seminary in this borough, on Friday Eve, (to-morrow) commencing at half past seven o'clock.

The object, we understand to be, to raise funds for the purpose of repairing the building.

Our friends should turn out and aid the project.

Pennsylvania Democracy.

The approach of a Presidential Election is almost uniformly signalized by a new excitement on popular credulity by the Democratic leaders in Pennsylvania. Now it is a cry of "Polk, Dallas, and the Tariff of '42;" now "Buchanan and Free Kansas;" or whatever else may seem to serve the purpose of the hour. One year, a leading Democratic Member of Congress from home reams of prospectuses of the Democratic organ at Washington, suppressing so much thereof as declares the party inexorably hostile to Protection; then Mr. Francis W. Hughes (who is now going a delegate to Charleston) holds a debate with a leading Whig, wherein he gravely maintains the proposition that Polk is a better Protectionist than Clay! In short, to swindle is the most available accomplishment, the inevitable necessity, of a Democratic wire-worker in Pennsylvania—the means whereby he achieves fat Collector-ships and Consulates, Foreign Embassies and seats in the Cabinet. We had no right to be surprised, therefore, that the late Democratic State Convention should have hardened its brass up to the point of passing this resolve, to wit: Resolved, That the convictions of the Democratic party remain unshaken in the wisdom and justice of adequate Protection for the Iron, Coal, Wool, and the other great staples of the country, based on the necessities of a reasonable revenue system for the General Government; and that we approve of the views of President Buchanan on the subject of Specific Duties, and desire our Representatives in Congress to procure such modifications of the law as the wisest legislation of the Republican party of 1857 renders necessary for the prosperity of the industrial interests of Pennsylvania.

Isn't that refrigerating? The modification of the Tariff effected in 1857 was recommended and formally approved by President Pierce, elected by the aid of these same Pennsylvania Democrats. It is further true— That the Republicans had not a majority in the House, and did not compose a fourth of the Senate.

That the only Democrat from Pennsylvania (Messrs. Florence and Packer) who voted either way on that bill, voted for it.

That quite a number of Republicans, including Mr. Sherman, now leader of the House, voted against it.

That it was in no sense a party measure, but was supported and opposed by members of all parties, with no regard to politics.

—We might go on multiplying facts which prove the utter knavery of the resolve above quoted—but to what end?— Its authors intended it only for effect on those who never see any exposure of their tricks, and do not want to see any. If snailing cheats to the pillory were now in fashion, those authors would have been careless long ago.—Tribune.

What His Opponents say of Him. We clip the following complimentary notice of Col. CURTIN from the Clinton Democrat, an administration paper published by the present Deputy Secretary of the Commonwealth.

"Col. Curtin, the nominee for Governor, is well and favorably known to our people. He belongs to this Judicial, Congressional and Senatorial district, and during all his professional life has been one of the most prominent lawyers in this section of the State. As a politician he is bold, vigorous, and uncompromising. For twenty-five years he has been one of the sturdiest pillars of the Opposition in this quarter, under whatever name they sailed. In this quarter we have met him before as a candidate and a leader, and we tell the Democracy everywhere to buckle on their armor, for they will have to meet a foe man worthy of their steel."

The idea, so sedulously disseminated in the democratic journals, that the trade of the South with the North has recently fallen off, in consequence of the prevalence of Republican principles in the latter section of the Union, is entirely unfounded in fact. All the New York papers concur in the statement that the number of southern traders now purchasing goods in the commercial metropolis is greater than usual. All the Steamboat, Railroad and Express Companies are full of business. They go regularly and steadily with full cargoes—great quantities of goods being frequently compelled to await new opportunities for transportation, and none of them have suffered any decrease whatever.

The State Convention of the Democratic party of Pennsylvania, at Reading, last week, nominated Henry D. Foster of Westmoreland county for Governor of that State, though he had few or no votes on the first ballot.

The nomination of Mr. Foster, at the first ballot, looks as though Mr. Buchanan had lost his influence in Pennsylvania. But the truth is, the matter was brought about by the President himself. After promising to Mr. Witte, of Philadelphia, the influence of the Administration in securing for him the nomination for Governor, the President abandoned him when the pinch came, and sided to get the nomination for Foster, a man who has not been personally identified with his views. We shall be greatly disappointed if Mr. Foster gains anything by the friend ship which Mr. Buchanan has suddenly and so unaccountably manifested for him.

A Harrisburg correspondent of the Philadelphia Dispatch, attributes Mr. Buchanan's intriguing for Foster, to a desire to make sure of the main bulk of the Delegates to Charleston. This is accomplished. Of the Senatorial Delegates appointed by the Convention to represent the State in the national convocation at Charleston, three—Messrs. Bigler, Baker and Dawson—are followers of Ledcomb, pure and simple; while Montgomery, the fourth, is claimed as a friend of Senator Douglas. Of the district delegates all but three or four are known as fast friends of the Administration in everything it may require at their hands.

In the platform adopted by the Pennsylvania Democratic Convention, an attempt is made to reconcile all the warring factions by giving each a distinctive plank; and as a consequence the structure is one of the most anomalous that any political body ever put together. The administrative policy of James Buchanan, and the squatter sovereignty doctrines of Senator Douglas, are the antipodes of each other; yet both were endorsed and approved with apparent heartiness. The managers of the Convention, in their eagerness to gain votes from all sorts of men and factions, have sacrificed all self-respect and consistency, and will lose, we think, rather than gain, by their facile pandering to the views of all the diverse cliques, coteries, clans and cabals, which happen to have under their command a few platoons of voters.

What a Boy's Pocket Contained. A little urchin of some seven summer's growth invited his mamma, the other day, in our presence, to repair a slight accident to a pantalon pocket, and to do this it became necessary to upset the contents thereof upon the floor, an inventory of which we proceed to note down as follows:—

An india rubber, a bottle cork, an old gas burner, one nine-pin, a part of an exploded fire cracker, an old match box, one old envelope, a bag of marbles, one hickory nut, piece of silk cord, several pieces of twine and strings, the lid of an old pill box, pieces of chestnut hull, a piece of tin, a piece of gingerbread, some pieces of fancy colored paper, two old nails, a small picture book, a slate pencil, a broken Jew's harp, the remains of a pocket handkerchief, a penny white, a piece of shoe string, two grains of corn, a pocket knife handle, half a peashooter, two spotted chicken feathers, a piece of brick bat, a spinning top, a dead mouse, an assortment of buttons, with crumbs of bread, candy, and a mixture of sand, pebbles and dirt generally.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

Hon. James A. Pearce was re-elected on the 24 inst., by the Legislature of Maryland, to the Senate of the United States for six years from the 4th of March 1861. Mr. Pearce was elected by democratic votes, although known as an old line Whig. His ancient political principles, however, were not remembered against him, because he is an ardent believer in the divinity of Slavery, which, now-a-days, is the chief test of Democracy, and like charity, covers in the estimation of the dominant party, a multitude of sins.

A Big Boy. The Miltonian says that a boy in Milton, who reached his 14th birthday on Tuesday of last week, weighed 227 pounds on that day.

The Missouri Opposition Convention met at Jefferson on the 1st inst., and adopted a series of resolutions denouncing the heresies of the Democratic party in reference to Slavery in the Territories, and declaring Edward Bates the choice of the Convention for the Presidency.
