SPRING.

BY THE BARD OF THE EASTON HALL OF FASHION Old Winter's term is over, Young Spring her reign begins: The early bird, in lively strains, Her inauguration sings.

"Are bounding o'er the les: And waked from their long winter sleep, Come forth the ant and bee.

The tiny plants and grass blades, Put on their robes of green-Snow drop and sweet anemone, Appear in beauteous sheen.

The herds are lowing gaily, As they crop the spring-time food: The matron hen, in joyous tone, Calls forth her little brood.

The flocks, with spreading pinions, flaste to the waters brim: Scan for a while its rippling waves, Then lightly o'er them skim.

Joy, gladness, grace and beauty, Come forth at Nature's smile; Man too, comes forth renewed in looks From the clothing store of Pyle.

03 The handsomest assortment of Ready Made Clothing and piece goods ever seen m Easton is now on exhibition, at Pyle's Great Easton Hall of Fashion, opposite the Easton Bank.

A Secessionist in Philadelphia---He flees.

An out-and-out secessioni-t, as indiscreet as Colonel Patrick Washington Couroy, came very bear being made lood for worms.

After going over the old argument on that side he intimated his sympathy with the rebels in the present conflict. This was more than the crowd could bear, and as impulsive move was made toward the traitor, and be took to his beels, followed down Third street by a party of nearly two bundred men and toys. The man sought shelter in the avenue of the Post Office, where the police came to his rescue and spirited him off by a "side-door movement.

During his flight an old man, whose grey hairs spoke in silvery accents of the trosts of seventy Winters, broke his um brella over the traitor's head, and wished it had been a sword in-tead of an umbreldrels down for "an usement."

OT An absent-minded professor, in going out of the gateway of his college, ran against a cow; in the confusion of the moment, he exclaimed, "I beg pardon, madame." Soon after he -tuabled again-t a lady in the street; in sudden recollection of bis former misbap, he called The streams loosed from their ice-chains, out, "Is that you, again, you trute?"
