

"Boys, I ask pardon of Almighty God and of all men for what I did. May Almighty God pardon me, and keep all of you from all such sin."

At a given signal by the Provost-Marshal, the executioners, who had been drawn up at a distance of six paces from the condemned, made ready to fire, and at a similar indication 8 of them discharged their carbines. Johnson clasped his hands over his breast, and hurriedly exclaimed several words which were rendered indistinct by his groans. Some of the balls had taken effect, but none were likely to prove fatal, and after an examination of the prisoner the Provost-Marshal ordered a reserve of four men to fire. The result was fatal, a ball literally tearing one of Johnson's eyes from its socket and scattering his brains, and another shattering his jaw in a frightful manner. The dead body rolled from the coffin and fell heavily upon the sod.

The deserter had offered the awful penalty due to his terrible crime. A shudder ran through the vast array of witnesses, and all was painfully still. In a few moments the entire division, headed by Gen. Franklin, took up the line of march, passing in view of the corpse. Every soldier had a chance to look upon the bleeding victim of his own imprudence, and if it is safe to presume that the sight will long be remembered and go far to prevent future desertions.—Tribune.

The State Appropriation to Common Schools.

The following circular relative to the State appropriations to the department of common schools has been published by the State Superintendent, Thomas H. Burrows, Esq.:

An erroneous impression is entertained in some parts of the State that the appropriation for the school year, beginning on the first Monday in June, 1861, was withdrawn by the State Legislature, and applied to the support of the War. It is, therefore, proper to say that our State has not thus disgraced herself. On the contrary, while the amount of appropriation payable per taxable to the districts will be the same as it was last year, the aggregate appropriations were greater in amount than for any year since 1840. The appropriations to the districts, will, therefore, be paid out as usual, as soon as each shall have filed the proper certificate that the schools were open and in operation, according to law, at least four months after the first Monday in June, 1861.

Quakers Doing War Duty.

The Quakers of Montgomery and Frederick Counties, Md., have formed sewing societies for soldiers, and are laboring with an alacrity which would astonish George Fox. It is said that when some committee men were going the rounds in their neighborhood to get blankets, etc., for the soldiers, they came to a Quaker household, where the first thing that arrested their eyes was a table loaded with blankets and quilts. The committee modestly preferred their request and a placid lady replied: "Friend, we cannot assist thee in the work of bloodshed, even so far as to help those engaged in it; but there are some things on that table, and if they choose to steal them, it is equally against our principles to use violence to prevent them." Convinced that the articles were very carefully placed where they could be stolen, the committee took the sin upon their own shoulders and left amid the most explosive laughter of the Quakeresses assembled, in which they joined.

English Invention.

A new kind of artificial stone and cement has been invented by Mr. Ransome. Broken pieces of chalk are mixed with the silicate of soda until the compound is of the proper consistency, when it is moulded into any desired form, and allowed to dry gradually; when the articles moulded have become dry and hard, their surfaces are washed with a solution of chloride of calcium, or chloride of aluminum. By this treatment the surface of the moulded stones is converted from a soluble into an insoluble silicate of lime.

An Unfortunate Goose.

In Trenton on Monday a goose came very nearly losing its valuable life, by becoming yoked in a lady's hoops. Its long neck, by some accident, became fastened in between the wires of this huge arrangement, and was dragged some distance on the pavement—squeaking for dear life. The lady who unconsciously made the capture, rather increased her speed in the hope that she would sooner get rid of her unwelcome beast, but only increased the difficulty. The goose finally succeeded, by a desperate struggle, in getting his neck out of this singular halter, and both went on their way rejoicing.

Matrimonial.

We find in one of our exchanges, the following from an individual who pretends he is in anxious pursuit of a Life Companion and Home Comforter. We publish it for the benefit of the "lonely and unfortunate," and those of the fair sex who may be disposed to look upon the critter in a favorable light.

I have lived solitary long enough; I want somebody to talk to, quarrel with—then kiss and make up again. Therefore I am open to proposals from young ladies and fresh widows of more than average respectability, tolerably tame in disposition, and hair of any color except red. As nearly as I can judge of myself, I am not over eighty nor under twenty five years of age. In height am either five feet eight, or eight feet five, forget which. Weight; 135, 315, or 531, one of the three; recollect each figure perfectly well, but as to their true arrangement am somewhat puzzled. Have a whole suit of hair, dyed by nature and free from dandruff. Eyes butter-nut-brown, tinged with pea-green. Nose blunt, according to the Ionic architecture, and mouth between a cat fish and an alligator—made especially for orators and the reception of large oysters. Ears palmaried, long and elegantly shaped. My whiskers are a combination of dog-hair, moss briar bush—well behaved, fearfully luxuriant.

Two High a Price for Haggling.

The Scientific American describes a breast plate which it is said is being extensively worn by the officers and men in the army. It is composed of thin steel, and is worn between the cloth and lining of a common military vest. It has two leaves, which lap at the edges when the vest is buttoned, so as to cover the entire chest. It weighs only three pounds and a half, and can be worn with ease by any officer or soldier during the most active exercise. It is very strong in proportion to its weight, as it can resist the thrust of bayonet or sword, and it will repel the bullets of muskets and pistols at ranges which would otherwise be fatal to life.
