JAS. F. MAXWELL,

MANUFACTURER OF

Fire and Water Proof Composition

GRAVEL ROOFS,

STROUDSBURG, PENNA.

RESPECTFULLY calls the attention of persons about to build, not to fail in adopting our well-known mode of Roofing, which is now principally used on almost all first-class buildings throughout the United States. Our Roofs have all the combined advantages of cheapness and durability. Being perfectly air-tight, there is none so cool in summer nor so warm in winter. They are also perfectly fire and water proof, and warranted to stand good at least for twenty-five years. Besides, they are put on at almost half the cost of either tin, slate or shingle. Persons having old tin, slate or shingle roofs leaking badly, can have them repaired and made fully as good as new, without taking off any of the old Roofs.

Trout Fishing.

The following from The Country Gentleman gives us some practical information in relation to trout fishing. We transfer it to our columns for the benefit of tyros in the sport:

First, as to the habits of the trout.—They seek in the warm season, clear, cool running water. In winter, they retreat to the deeper water, such as fords and deep holes. The trout may be said to dislike civilization, and when the forest and brush are cleared from his old haunts, he takes good care to leave also. There are many streams in this region which twenty years ago yielded trout abundantly that are now almost deserted. Solitude is therefore indispensable to their increase, except when propagated by artificial means. When spring opens, and the streams are warmed by the sun, the trouts run up into the brooks, and may then be taken by experienced anglers. The trout is very shy, and he who would catch him must keep without the range of his eye as much as possible. Noise does not frighten him. They usually lie under logs or edges of rocks, or under banks, or in any place where seclusion can be obtained.—When in search of food, as at sunset or in the early morning, or at times on cloudy days, they are all about the stream, but will often be found in quick water or in the very deepest water.

Second, the best time to catch. This is usually in the morning and at evening. Cloudy days preferred to bright days because the fish are then less liable to see the angler. Often in pond fishing, a light ripple on the surface of the water is as good as cloudy weather. And often, too I have had great success in the brightest day. It is impossible to tell just when they will bite best. My rule is to go whenever I get ready, and take the chance. April, May and June are the best months.

Then as to the bait. For brook fishing, there is nothing better than the angle worm or a dew worm. For pond fishing, the artificial fly, and so vice versa. Large trout, however, are often caught with the fly. Minnows are good and will frequently tempt large trout when the worm and fly both fail.

Enjoying a Prayer Meeting.

Some thirty years ago, in a town in New York long since noted for "stated preaching," old Deacon Bemont was conducting a prayer meeting in the church. His seat was in front of the pulpit, where a door opened into a small closet. The worthy old deacon leaning his chair back against the door that opened inward, happened to tip his chair beyond its balance, trusting to the treacherous door, when down he went, heels up, into the closet, to the no small consternation of the audience. The poor deacon had to be drawn out by his legs, chair and all, and stared about him in profound bewilderment at ill-constrained tittering that greeted
