THE VERY LATEST!

NO IMPOSITION!
NOTWITHSTANDING THE BLOW and blusters of new beginners, FABLE at the old stand, on the corner is still maintaining his reputation as the keeper of the cheapest store, decidedly, in this section of country. There is no mistake in this as the following facts will show:
He is selling PRINTS at from 10 to 20 cts. per yard.
DELANES 25 cents per yard, the price before the war.
SILKS at from $1 to $2 per yard.
All kinds of FINE DRESS GOODS at greatly reduced prices.
MUSLINS from 12 to 25 cents per yard.
READY-MADE CLOTHING, so far below war prices as to astonish purchasers.
HATS at a very low figure indeed.
FABLE also keeps an eye to the comfort of the inner man, and offers SUGARS at from 10 to 18 cents per pound.
COFFEES 25 to 35 cents per pound.
MOLASSES, 40 cents to $1 per gallon.
A good assortment of CARPETS at nearly the old rates before the war.
FABLE has no desire to particularize, but if you want anything in his line, of good quality and at less rates than can be purchased at any other store, call at FABLE'S old stand corner of Elizabeth and streets and you cannot fail to be suited.
No charge for showing goods.
GEORGE FABLE.
Stroudsburg, Pa., April 19, 1866.

A Deceived Dutchman.

Into Alderman Daugherty's office, says the Philadelphia Daily News, walked a rotund son of fade land, as full of froth and ebullition as a mug of Lancaster lager.

"Bese you de man vot arrests a fellow ven he steals mine watch?"

"If you know who has it I will have him arrested," smiled the accommodating magistrate.

"Vell, den, vot de dyvel bese you calls de local editors of de noose papers?"

"The reporters; they collect the current news of the city. They pick up items."

"Dey pick up items? I tink. Is gold watch items?" Is sixty dollars items?—Hey?"

He was asked to explain what he meant which he did as follows:

"Dis morning I was drinking lager mit mine friends all de while in mine saloon, und in games a young man—py tam he was such a other nice young man vot dere never was already—and he pulls out a lettle sheepskin book and a lead-pencil, and he says he pese local editors, and wants me to tell him all vot dere was pout de row mit my peer saloon last night.

"I ask him vot kind of business he was to that row, py tam, what kind of right?"

"Und he says he reports um in de papers."

"So I tell him all vot I don't know pout de rows vot some tam rodies tries to kick out mine saloon last night; und mine poarders get around und they dells more things vot I recollects; und de nice young man he sticks em down in his sheepskin book mit his lead-pencil. Den he drinks glass lager, vich he don't let himself pay for, py tam (I felt shure as never vash he pe one litle newspaper fellow when he didn't make pay mit mine lager. But dat makes nothing tifference. Der's no brineible in dat), und den he goes out, und I don't sees him agin all de wile.

"Den one of my poarders finds himself stole away from his gold vatch, py tam; und my neighbor Schmidt, he found sixty dollars vat he hadn't got."

"You were in the toils of a practical pickpocket," said the alderman, "and he pulled the wool over your eyes to empty your pockets."

"Vell he succeeded pretty goot, mine Got! De next time a man comes into ming saloon mit his tam sheepskin pencil and lead pook and says he is a local editor, py tam he don't gomes in!"

Hon. James S. Thorne, member of the New York Assembly, and city editor of the Troy Times, died on Saturday morning last at five o'clock of consumption. It being known that he could not live more than a few hours, his obituary was prepared by Mr. Fonda, one of the editors of the paper, but (by a full from a window) strange and sorrowful as is the fact, Mr. Fonda died first, he expiring at three o'clock on Saturday morning, two hours before the decease of Mr. Thorne. An associate in the office, filled with a strange presentiment, as he states, remarked to Mr. Fonda, as he was preparing the obituary article, "Well, old fellow, you will die before James."
