CORN SONG.

ER J. G. WHITTIER.

Heap high the farmer's wintry board! Heap high the golden corn! No richer gift has autumn poured From out her lavish horn !

Let other lands, exalting, glean The apple from the pine, The orange from its glossy green, The cluster from the vine.

Our rugged vales bestow, To cheer us when the storms shall drift Our harvest fields with snow.

Our plows their furrows made, Of changeful April played.

We dropped the seed o'er hill and plain, Beneath the sun of May, And frightened from our spouting grain The robber crows away.

All through the long bright days of June, Its leaves grew bright and fair,

And waved in hot midsummer noon, Its soft and yellow hair.

And now with Autumn's moonlit eyes, Its harvest time has come, We pluck away its frosted leaves, And bear its treasures home.

There, richer than the fabled gift Apollo showered of old, Fair hands the broken grain shall sift, And knead its meal of gold.

Let vapid idlers hull in silk, Around the costly board ; Give us the bowl of samp and milk, By homespun beauty poured.

Whose folly laughs to scorn The blessings of our hardy grain, Our wealth of golden corn.

A touching incident is related as having occurred in Milwakee, Wisconsin, lately About two years ago Mr. Strausburg pur chased for his child, six years of age, named Willie, a young Newfoundland dog, also called Willie. The two became vegrief of the child was inexpressible. He cried incessantly, and called continually for his companion. The father to quiet his grief, had the dog's hide stuffed, but it satisfied the child only for a day. Every effort was made to allay the little fellow's sorrow, but without avail, and in about a week he died from pure grief.
