A Curious Anecdote.

Paris Temps a curious anecdote in regard to the Day & Martin's Blacking, which has been advertised throughout the world, and even on the Egyptian Pyramids :

One afternoon, Day, then a poor workman, was drinking his half-and half in a London ale-house, when a poor and ragged individual entered and addressing himself to those present said :

"Who will give me a pint of ale for a good recipe for blacking ?"

"Good !" said Day; "now I will give dersare a you another pint," which the unknown drank and then took his leave.

The next morning Day sought one of his friends, a commerical traveller named Martin, and showed him the recipe .--They made a quantity of the blacking. PIMPLES, BLOTCHES, A SALLOW and filled all the old bottles they could obtain with the mixture.

This done, a friend of the partners went to all the grocers and blacking merchants of London, and addressed to each one the question, "Have you Day & Martin's blacking ?"

And all the shop-keepers naturally enough answered "No."

The next day another friend went the rounds, and to each merchant he pro- that will care Liver Complaint. pounded the question that his predecessor had done, in each case he recived the that will cure Constipation. same answer. The next day another friend went to each merchant, but this time the question was, "Would you like to buy some Day & Martin's blacking ?"

And all the merchants answered, "Willingly," and the fortune of the house of Day & Martin was made. They adopted at seeing his image reflected in the polished surface of a boot, as in a mirror, and this label has become world famous. of charge. It only remains to be said that Day, on the occasion of his daughter's marriage, mail on application to was enabled to give her as a wedding gilt the nice little sam of two hundred thousand dollars, which was a good deal in those days.
