French Politeness.

The French Government has carried its politeness to foreigners to such an extreme as to refuse the authorization to play a drama called "The War in Ameri ca," till the exhibition is over. The authors who do not take sides in the piece, any part of the globe for the price, 50 cents. although their sympathies were for the Union and against rebellion, say that the tion, &c., sent to any part of the world free authorization was positively refused because the susceptibilities of some people favorable to the rebellion might be hurt. But the following is the best example of national susceptibilities we have heard of. An American who is now in Paris, and who claims to be the most adroit man in the world in the handling of the musket and bayonet, went the other day to seek DYSPEPSIA cuses, offering to fight in the arena (with wooden bayonets) against five of the best musketmen in the French army, all at DISEASES of the once, one against five. The young man was amazed at such advice from such a source, and it Bad Breath! set him to thinking seriously. Surely, if any one were competent to judge of the worthlessness of such pursuits he was and his opinion made so deep an impression upon the mind of the youth that he never played again.
